Remembering Frank McCauley

City's 30th Mayor Passes Away Nov. 3 At Age Of 91

A funeral Mass for former Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley was celebrated Tuesday at Holy Trinity Parish in Most Blessed Sacrament Church, 1015 Sea St., Quincy.

Mr. McCauley, who served eight years as the city's 30th mayor from 1982 to 1989, died Nov. 3 – the 40th anniversary of his election as mayor – marking the end of an era in Quincy politics. He was 91.

McCauley was one of the city's longest-serving elected officials, serving 32 years in elective office in a political career that spanned five decades. He was the only person in city history to be elected to all four elective offices: ward councillor, school committee member, councillor-at-large and mayor. Following his retirement from politics, he remained an active and popular figure on the local scene, writing a newspaper column on Quincy history, participating in local civic organizations and offering analysis and commentary on city politics.

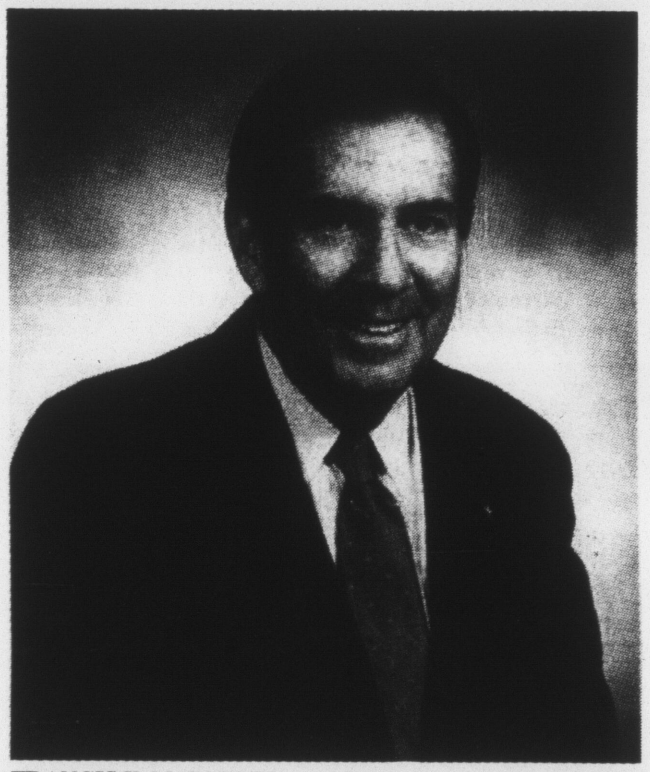

Modest Beginnings

Born Dec. 27, 1929 at Quincy City Hospital, McCauley grew up in Hough's Neck, the only child of Hugh and Mary (McKeown) McCauley. He attended Atherton Hough Elementary School and Central Junior High, where his keen intellect and arithmetic skills soon became apparent. Upon observing the young McCauley's way with numbers, Blessed Sacrament assistant pastor Father Peter Hart gave him the nickname "Brains" and promptly appointed him statistician for the church's youth basketball league.

At the urging of Father Hart, McCauley's parents sent him to Boston College High School, and McCauley graduated from B.C. High in the Class of 1948. Following graduation, he spent a year on active duty in the U.S. Navy before attending Boston College, paying his tuition by working as a commercial clam digger. He later graduated from Bentley College (now Bentley University) and earned a diploma from the Indiana University Graduate School of Banking. In 1954, McCauley married Sandra MacKinnon of Hough's Neck, where the two settled and raised five children.

In 1958, McCauley accepted a job as a teller with the Shipbuilder's Cooperative Bank. Within two years he was appointed treasurer, and rose to become the bank's president

FRANCIS X. McCAULEY served four terms as Quincy's 30th mayor from 1982 to 1989. He served 32 years in public life including terms as a ward councillor, councillor at-large and school committee member - the only Quincy resident elected to all four elective offices. Mr. McCauley died Nov. 3. He was 91.

FRANK McCAULEY was a proud and staunch Republican who endorsed several successful GOP candidates including William Weld for governor and Scott Brown for U.S. Senate. Here Mr. McCauley takes a ride on an oversized stuffed elephant (the symbol of the Republican Party) during festivities at the Woodward School for Girls while he was Quincy mayor in the 1980s. Johnice Graham of Quincy won the stuffed animal and promptly named it "Frank" in honor of the Quincy mayor. Quincy Sun File Photo

Bill Would End Life Without Parole Sentence

New Deputy Fire Chief, 3 Other FFs Promoted

By SCOTT JACKSON

Four members of the Quincy Fire Department recently received promotions during a recent ceremony, including one firefighter elevated to the rank of deputy chief.

The promotional ceremony was held the afternoon of Oct. 29 in the Great Hall of the James R. McIntyre Government Center with dozens of family members and fellow firefighters in attendance. City Clerk Nicole Crispo swore in each of the newly promoted officers at the ceremony and members of their families were on hand to pin each officer with a new badge.

Speaking shortly before the firefighters received their promotions, Mayor Thomas Koch said the members of the Quincy Fire Department are its greatest asset.

"To everyone in our fire service, we thank you. We appreciate what you do each and every day. We as a city try to be supportive of your efforts by providing the resources necessary," Koch said.

"The greatest asset for you is manpower. We can get you all the best equipment, but if you don't have the manpower it makes the job that much more unsafe and certainly less responsive to the citizens."

Fire Chief Joseph Jackson congratulated the four newly promoted and their families.

"Congratulations to all of you guys that are getting promoted today. This is something that is not easily earned, as we know," Jackson said.

"To anybody in the room that doesn't know, these promotional exams are given statewide and they are very competitive, particularly in Quincy. Quincy almost always without exception has some of the highest marks in the state. These are good guys that invest a lot of time, and that is why we have such great firemen in the city of Quincy quite frankly.

"Congratulations to you guys and your families and I look forward to working with all of you."

During the ceremony, Joseph Barron Jr. was promoted to the rank of deputy fire chief. Barron had joined the department as a firefighter in October 2004, was promoted to lieutenant in August 2012 and to captain in February 2019. He is the son of Joseph Barron, who served as the city's fire chief until his retirement in July 2018, and the grandson of the late William Barron, who retired from the department as a deputy chief.

Shortly after receiving his promotion, Barron said he had looked up to his father and grandfather when he first joined the department.

"It means a lot for me," Barron said of his promotion. "As the chief said in his opening remarks, it's a lot of work that goes into it, so it is a sense of accomplishment that I am very proud of.

"Obviously it is a great tradition in my family where my father retired as chief of the department and my grandfather retired as a deputy chief, so since I joined the department I always felt like I was kind of looking up to them and had some big shoes to fill. This is a big step in that direction."

James Campbell was promoted to the rank of captain during the ceremony on Oct. 29. He had joined the department in May 2011 and was promoted to lieutenant in June 2016.

Two firefighters were promoted to the rank of lieutenant that afternoon – Gerard Shea, who joined the department in September 2015, and Christopher Murphy, who was hired in October 2004.

The promotions came after Deputy Chief Paul Griffith retired from the department. He had served as a Quincy firefighter for 34 years.

With the promotion of two firefighters to lieutenant, Jackson noted the department will now have 42 lieutenants on staff, up from the 41 lieutenants it has had for many years. The chief thanked the mayor for the addition of the new lieutenant.

"Special thanks to you for upping our lieutenant count from 41 lieutenants to 42 lieutenants," Jackson said to Koch. "Since I can remember, we have carried the 41 lieutenants."

'The Big Parade' Film Showing At Bethany Church

The silent film classic "The Big Parade" starring John Gilbert will be presented at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Streets, Quincy, on Saturday, Nov. 13 at 7 p.m.

Admission to the film showing is free.

"The Big Parade" is a 1925 American silent film directed by King Vidor starring John Gilbert. The story is about an idle rich boy who joins the U.S. Army's Rainbow Division and is sent to France to fight in World War I. He becomes a friend of two working class men, experiences the horrors of trench warfare, and finds love with a French girl.

The film was groundbreaking for not glorifying the war or ignoring its human costs, exemplified by the lead character's loss of a leg from battle wounds. It heavily influenced all subsequent war films, especially "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Lebo topped the six-person field in the School Committee race, finishing with 5,128 votes. Cahill was second with 4,807 votes and Gutro placed third with 4,439 votes.

Coming in fourth place was incumbent Courtney Perdios, who had been appointed to the committee in February, with 4,388 votes, 51 fewer than Gutro. First-time candidates Liberty Schaaf and Liz Speakman finished fifth and sixth, with 3,802 and 3,330 votes respectively.

Lebo, Cahill and Gutro will likely begin their new School Committee terms on Jan. 5. Details of that meeting have yet to be released.

Lebo, a former Quincy Public Schools administrator, has served ten years on the committee. Gutro, a former city councillor, is concluding his first four-year term on the board.

Cahill, the executive director of the Recovered Souls Foundation and a former administrator at Quincy College, was making her first run for elected office. Cahill said she was grateful for and humbled by the support she received during the campaign.

"When I reflect on the past few months, I am overwhelmed by the show of support I have received since I entered the race," Cahill said in a statement. "I know it's a cliché, but elections are not about one person; they are about a team of individuals with the same values, priorities, and commitment to the community in which they live. In this race especially, we were focused on what's best for the students in our city and the education they receive.

"My supporters are second to none. They were passionate, tireless, and committed to my candidacy, and that's why we were successful. I am incredibly grateful and humbled.

"I hope to make them and the voters proud, and I hope to represent their values, priorities, and commitment to our students and the City of Quincy during my term on the school committee."

Lebo was the top vote getter in Ward 3, her home ward, and also in Ward 6. She polled the second most votes in Wards 4 and 5 and also tied Gutro for second place in Ward 2. Lebo finished in third in Ward 1.

Cahill polled the most votes in Ward 4 and finished second in Wards 1, 3 and 6. She had the third most votes in Ward 5, where she resides, and placed fourth in Ward 2.

Gutro was the top vote getter in Ward 5, which he formerly represented on the City Council. He tied Lebo for the second most votes in Ward 2, where he now resides and came in third in Wards 4 and 6.

Schaaf was the top vote getter in Ward 1 and Perdios topped the ballot in Ward 2, meaning both won their home wards.

A preliminary election had been held in the School Committee race in September, to whittle a field of seven candidates down to the six who appeared on this month's ballot.

Cahill and Lebo had topped the field in the September preliminary election, with 2,330 and 2,216 votes respectively. Perdios placed third in the preliminary with 1,984 votes followed by Schaaf with 1,915 votes, Gutro with 1,777 and Speakman with 1,351. Ellen Patterson O'Donnell finished in seventh place with 857 and was eliminated from the race.

Herbs used for Thanksgiving cooking

Bay leaves go into stocks and brines, sometimes added to water when cooking pasta.

Parsley is good for blending flavors. It is sold in bunches rather than packaged in plastic.

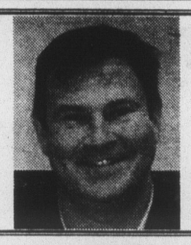

Rosemary has stiff, needle-like leaves that are quite pungent. Dried leaves can be crushed, and fresh can be finely chopped.

Sage has a stronger flavor fresh than dried, which is sold both "rubbed" and "ground."

Thyme complements everything from poultry and meat to vegetables and pasta. - Brenda Weaver

Memories Of Frank McCauley

Frank McCauley's passing Nov. 3rd at the age of 91 saddened anyone who knew him. He was a man of integrity, honesty and a dedicated public servant who served the city he loved for 32 years as mayor, councillor at-large, ward councillor and school committee member. He remains the only Quincy citizen to be elected to all four municipal offices – a local political Mount Rushmore.

Frank was the first mayor I covered when I started working at The Quincy Sun during college breaks in early 1984 and then full-time in 1987. He was available every week to sit down with local reporters who peppered him with questions about local issues and other important news of the day. He offered more than "good copy;" he was a transparent, straight-shooter who never shied away from tough questions.

But there was more to Frank than the Tuesday 2 p.m. press conferences.

He had a refreshing flair for the dramatic and a sparkling sense of humor.

Just before his fourth mid-term address in January 1989, Frank called my dad at The Sun and told him: "Henry, be sure you have a photographer and reporter at my mid-term. You don't want to miss it."

Henry had a good idea what was up but Frank wasn't tipping his hand. "Just be there."

So, we had two photographers and two reporters at the address in the old Council Chamber of the James R. McIntyre Government Center. Frank was speaking off the cuff as he usually did – never any prepared notes for his public address – and as he got to the end of his speech, a hush fell over the audience.

Frank then told those present that it had been a pleasure serving the city as mayor these past seven years and "this will be my last as mayor." He was officially announcing he would not seek a fifth term later that year.

He then quoted a longtime friend who once told him: "It is better to leave too soon than to stay too long." He added one final word: "Sayonara" – the Japanese word for farewell and goodbye.

Frank immediately left the rostrum and headed out the Chamber. His mayoral term came to an end that fall when Jim Sheets was elected to succeed him.

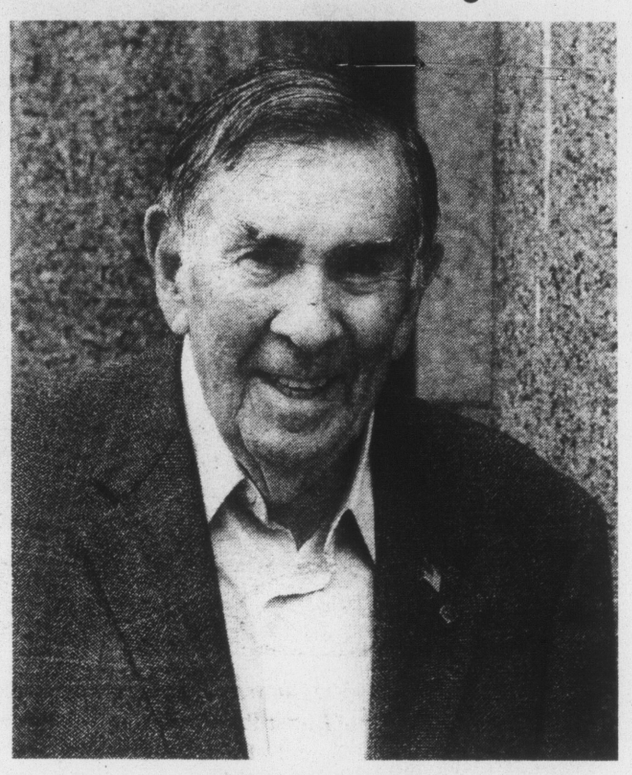

It was a dramatic moment in local politics. Frank McCauley, at that time, had been the city's longest serving mayor since Amelio Della Chiesa who had served 8 years as mayor under Plan A from 1958 to 1965 and four as a councillor at-large under Plan E. The mayors in between Della Chiesa and McCauley had all served less than eight years: James McIntyre (6), Walter Hannon (4), Joseph LaRaia (2) and Arthur Tobin (4).

Frank, confirming John Adams' notion that "politics in an incurable disease" returned to public service in 1995 winning a two-year unexpired term on the school committee. In 1997, he won a councillor at-large seat and served eight more years on the council capping off his 32-year political life as the council president.

There was more to Frank McCauley than politics. He was a good-natured man who was blessed with a wonderful wit.

One of my favorite stories of Frank came at a Jimmy Fund fundraiser in October 1988 in honor of former Red Sox and beloved Quincy resident Sam Mele. A star-studded line-up of Sam's good friends and former baseball teammates gathered at the Neighborhood Club to pay tribute to Sam who was also a longtime scout for the Red Sox who also managed the Minnesota Twins to the American League pennant in 1965.

Besides Sam, the Red Sox royalty included Johnny Pesky, Bobby Doerr and Ted Williams. There was a social hour where the players renewed friendships and also spent time talking to other guests and giving autographs. Then there was dinner and some presentations to Sam.

Frank McCauley, as the mayor, brought greetings to the city and announced that he was going to make one of the former Red Sox players an honorary citizen of Quincy.

So Frank holds up a baseball cap upside down and tells the crowd that he's put each player's number on a piece of paper inside the cap. He reaches in, pulls out one piece of paper and announces "Number 9 – Ted Williams."

Well Ted strides across the stage and just as Frank turns towards him with an honorary citizen citation "The Kid" grabs the hat, looks inside and announces to the crowd: "All the pieces of paper are Number 9."

The crowd roared with laughter. The mayor had been outsmarted by "The Splendid Splinter."

Ted, as it turned out, still had the great eyesight that made him one of the most dominant hitters in the big leagues for many years. From a distance he could actually read his name on the citizen citation.

Frank – smiling from ear to ear – calmly collected himself and told Williams: "with this honor you will also be subjected to an annual excise tax." More laughter.

Another humorous moment came in October 1989 when the $60 million Quincy Hospital health care facility was dedicated.

McCauley was upbeat and joked during his keynote address explaining his personal involvement at the hospital. Born there in Dec. 27, 1929, he returned three and a half years later in 1933 after his appendix ruptured.

In 1939, he had his tonsils removed and then he was back in 1954 for another operation. In 1973, he was a patient again this time for a gall bladder operation.

Then Frank – the stand-up comedian – got the crowd laughing.

"I was really going to get heavily involved in this and tell you all about it. As a matter of fact, I said to (Hospital Director) Mark (Mundy), would it be more dramatic if I opened my shirt and showed you my gall bladder scar and Mark said, 'if you do that mayor, you're going to be the first patient in the new psychiatry area."

It was a certainly a day to remember for the mayor and his family.

As the ceremony concluded after a parade of speakers, Frank was asked to join Mundy in a plaque unveil-

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1907 POSTCARD shows the old Central Middle School on the corner of Butler Road and Hancock Street as it looked when originally built in 1894 as Quincy High School. Major additions beginning in 1907 totally obscured its late 19th century look that was designed by architect E.G. Thayer. He had incorporated some features similar to those of the Thomas Crane Library's Richardson Building such as roof dormers and a projecting centered tower along with arched entrances and windows. Before this school was built, the high school was in a wooden frame building opened in 1851 on High School Avenue behind today's Central fire station. This building served as Central Middle School until a new school opened in 2013. The building was redesigned and converted to condominiums in 2017.

Remember All Our Veterans: Past And Present

READERS FORUM

As we prepare to honor all our military veterans once again this Thursday, Nov. 11, we should all take just a moment to remember all our veterans past and present, and also remember all who are serving this nation today.

I will especially remember those 13 brave heroes who perished in Afghanistan defending their mission during the evacuation of Kabul before it fell into enemy hands. I missed marching in the Veterans Day Parade which was cancelled last year due to COVID-19. A few years back (2017 and 2018) I was about 1,500 miles away in Austin, TX but both those years I proudly marched in the City of Austin's (TX) Veterans Day parade where temperatures both years hovered in the low-seventies. This year I will be back in Quincy this year with temperatures getting nowhere near the Texas heat in November.

I remember well how important Veterans Day was honored. Growing up in the 50s and 60s with both World War II and the Korean War still fresh in our minds, parades were large and crowds even larger. As a kid, I personally knew many survivors of the attack on Pearl Harbor which will be commemorating the 80th anniversary of the "Day of Infamy." As a young teen, I lived next door to a veteran of two wars. His second war was World War I, his first war was as a Rough Rider with Col. Teddy Roosevelt going up San Juan Hill in 1898.

I hope to see the parade lined with citizens cheering and waving flags. We need to rekindle our patriotism because America has been under constant attack as of late. America is a good country with good people. We are not perfect people but we try to improve from generation to generation.

Never be ashamed of being an American where we are free to speak out and debate issues.

There are some among us with loud boisterous voices trying to shut down civil discourse. President Ronald Reagan once stated that America was always one generation away from having our freedom taken from us. We must defend our constitutional rights. We do not want this generation to turn the lights out on our liberties so heroically defended for almost 246 years.

We must both wake up and stand up for America and everything it stands for. Marching or watching the Veterans Day parade helps to keep up the fight that began with our founding fathers who risked everything for liberty. We can do no less than to carry on their courageous actions.

Government is our business because We the People are the government.

Vibrant Electrical Boxes Now A Boring Black

The "Adventure Awaits" painting on the electrical box by the library and the vibrant purple and yellow striped box near the Church of the Presidents are now boring black.

Why?

Because the mayor asked the DPW to paint over them for the dedication of the Generals Bridge. Again I ask, why?

Did he think having colorful utility boxes might offend the guests? I think they added character to the square. Was this really a good use of time for the DPW? I can think of a lot of places that could use some additional care and attention from our Public Works people. (The benches in Freedom Park and trash pickup in Quincy Square on Saturday morning and at the neighborhood parks on Monday morning all come to mind.)

These boxes were unique and they were part of a Girl Scout project to beautify the city. The boxes now look like dark obstacles and not vibrantly colorful pieces of urban infrastructure.

The mayor has no plans to restore the artistry he ordered destroyed. I think that is a shame and unworthy of a city that claims to be a cultural attraction and a supporter of the arts. Apparently only pictures in galleries are worthy of city support.

Paint anywhere else is considered graffiti and subject to removal upon the whim of the mayor.

McCauley To Reveal Team Early

Mayor-Elect Francis X. McCauley said he hoped to have his administration team put together by the end of the month, after which he plans to name them all at once.

"I want to hold a press conference in the second week of December when I will introduce those who are going to work with us in the administration," he said.

"The next month is going to be one of the most important parts of the next two years."

"We'll be making changes but I want to be sure that we will be making changes for the better not just making changes for the sake of change."

McCauley met with Mayor Arthur H. Tobin on Friday, Nov. 6 to discuss the transition period and both men called the meeting "good."

AUDITOR'S JOB TO BE SPLIT?

The City Council's special committee to choose a city auditor planned to meet Monday, Nov. 23 in the Council Chambers to discuss changes in the office and candidates for the post.

William Grindlay had been acting auditor since last spring when Charles L. Shea retired. Seven applicants were seeking to replace him.

Council President Leo J. Kelly said he doesn't think that the committee, which is made up of the Council as a whole, will reach any decision on a nomination at the meeting.

One of the changes that will be discussed was the possibility of splitting the job in two with a comptroller to handle day-to-day affairs and an auditor to review the records.

President John Adams and his legacy of duty and faith was honored during a ceremony at the United First Parish Church in Quincy Center on the 286th anniversary of his birthday.

Local students, officials, and visitors gathered on Friday, Oct. 29 in the church sanctuary where Adams and his family worshiped to pay tribute to the nation's second president. The ceremony featured the laying of the Presidential Wreath on Adams' tomb sent by President Joe Biden.

Church President Jim Petosa welcomed the gathering and noted that Adams and his son, John Quincy Adams who served as the sixth president of the United States, are both entombed in the parish's crypt next to their respective wives, Abigail Adams, and Louisa Catherine Adams.

Adams was born on Oct. 30, 1735 in the North Precinct of Braintree which later became Quincy and served as president from 1797 to 1801. Prior to that, he was a Massachusetts delegate to the Continental Congress and served as George Washington's vice president for two terms. A Harvard University graduate, Adams was an attorney and a diplomat, and spearheaded the drafting of the Declaration of Independence.

City Council President Nina Liang noted how Adams helped "shaped the city we call home" and that the ceremony's theme of duty and faith correlates how the pandemic and the "unprecedented times of the past two years" has brought the community together.

"We must remember the duties we have to one another but have faith there will be light at the end of this tunnel," she said.

Liang recited a saying that "the rising tide lifts all ships."

"I believe that our city, because of the community that we are, has been that rising tide," she said. "We have come together to support small businesses, to reach out to lend a hand to our neighbor, and to ensure what we had to endure we're not doing so alone. We will come out of these unprecedented times better, most importantly, together."

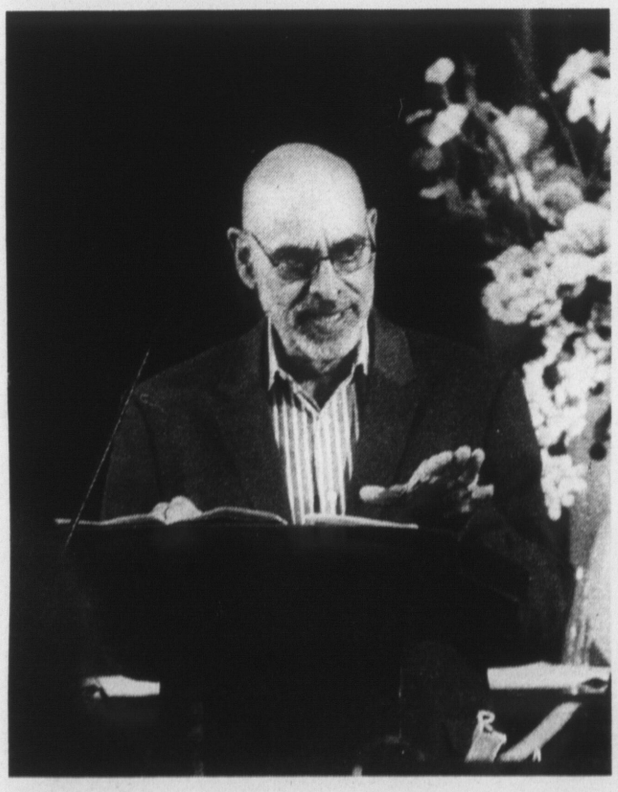

Liang said that Adams' legacy should "inspire each of us to continue to rise to the challenge of what it truly means to serve others, to be unafraid of challenges to come, and to move our city forward together."

Four local high school students recounted Adams' life and legacy.

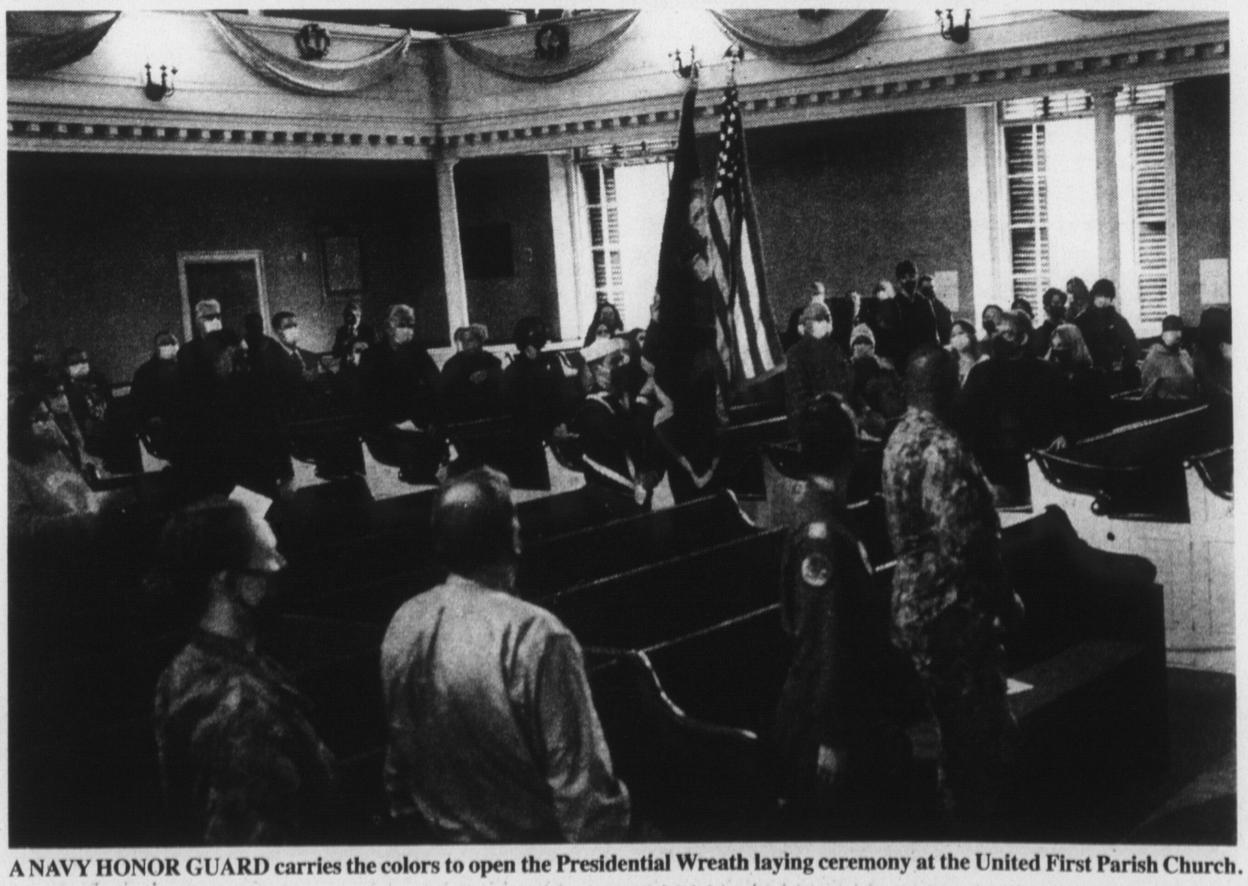

North Quincy High School student Dominique Dang spoke about how Adams' moral compassion - to do the right thing - drove his life. She pointed to Adams acting as counsel to successfully defend several British soldiers accused of murder in the Boston Massacre.

"Adams believed everyone is entitled to a good defense regardless of their background or action," she said. "Although the colonists were upset by the outcome and by Adams' decision, it was an honest and fair trial."

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL student Brandon Hibbard talks about President John Adams' push for public education and that it is the "duty of good citizens to be educated...(and) education be accessible to all Americans."

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL student Kloee Gora said that President John Adams "stressed the importance of a moral character, self-discipline, and a strong education" to his son, President John Quincy Adams.

WOODWARD SCHOOL SENIOR Zoe Maher speaks on how "duty was driving force of John Adams' life...to him, duty was synonymous with sacrifice."

KELLY COBBLE of the Adams National Historic Park talks about how the son of John and Abigail Adams, John Quincy Adams' "success was largely due to the sense of duty instilled in him by his father and mother."

Dang said that Adams helped shape the United States.

"Adams' patriotic contributions and duty to a growing nation laid the foundation of the government we have today," she said. "It is now up to us to defend, help, and care for others and it is up to us to continue John Adams' legacy."

Quincy High School student Brandon Hibbard said that Adams was an advocate for public education.

"Adams was a strong believer that citizens be educated, and towns provide public education," he said. "It was so important to Adams that education be maintained and accessible to all Americans that he put the idea into the Massachusetts state constitution."

Hibbard said Adams set the stage for today's public school system.

"Overall, Adams believed that education is available to students of all genders and races…and students in all towns should be able to go to school publicly funded by the towns," said Hibbard.

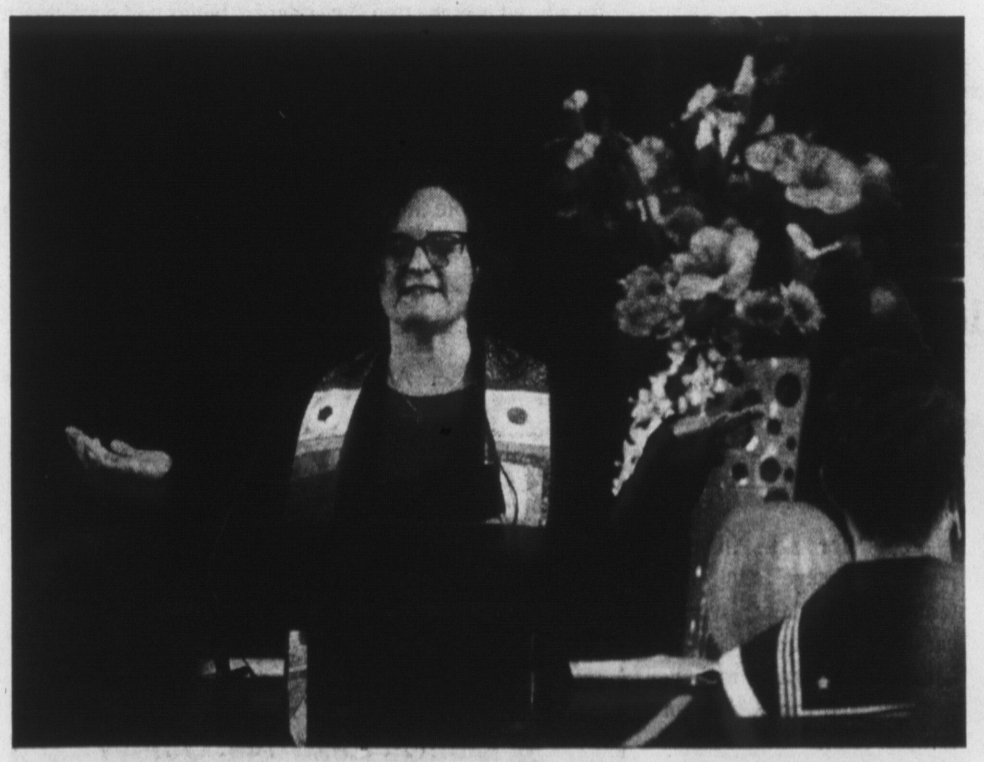

Hibbard's Quincy high classmate, Kloee Gora, said Adams' push for public education was important for the young nation.

"Adams felt citizens have the duty, built on the idea of self-government, to take advantage of the educational opportunities so they can contribute and make informed decisions as America grew and faced challenges," she said.

Gora pointed to the recent challenges created by COVID-19 that prompted the shutting down of schools and remote learning from home.

"Although we were unable to physically attend school, remote learning was a strong method of maintaining Adams' goal for an educated citizenry," she

Marie & Suzie: Thanksgiving Recipes From Sides To Desserts

Dear Readers,

Thanksgiving is right around the corner! Please enjoy these delicious, tried and true recipes! Relax, prepare ahead and A Very Happy Thanksgiving to All!! ~~ Marie

Patrick's Pumpkin Pie

Today's recipe for pumpkin pie, made with a real pumpkin instead of canned, was given to my granddaughter, Stacey's daughter Aileen by her friend Patrick. This is his favorite way to enjoy pumpkin pie. When Stacey made the pie, she also made me a small, individual one, and I have to agree with Patrick using fresh pumpkin is the way to make a real pumpkin pie. It takes a little more time, but certainly worth it.

Directions and Ingredients

Pastry for Single-Crust Pie:
1 and 1/3 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
3 and ½ tablespoons cold water

(Or you can purchase a ready-made pie crust from the grocery store.)

Filling:

2 cups mashed, cooked pumpkin
1 (12 fluid ounce) can evaporated milk
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F

Prepare pie crust by mixing together the flour and salt. Cut shortening into flour; add cold water 1 tablespoon at a time (you may need only 3 tablespoons, or up to 4 tablespoons). Mix dough and repeat until dough is moist enough to hold together.

With lightly floured, hands shape dough into a ball.

On a lightly floured board roll dough out to about 1/8-inch thickness. With a sharp knife, cut dough 1 1/2 inch larger than the upside-down 8- to 9-inch pie pan.

Gently roll the dough around the rolling pin and transfer it right-side up onto the pie pan. Unroll, easing dough into the bottom of the pie pan.

To prepare the fresh pumpkin: Use 1 1/2 pounds of skin-on, raw pumpkin to yield 2 cups of mashed. Halve pumpkin and scoop out seeds and stringy portions. Cut pumpkin into chunks.

In saucepan over medium heat, in 1 inch of boiling water, heat the pumpkin to a boil. Reduce heat to low, cover, and simmer for 30 minutes or until tender. Drain, cool and remove the peel. Return pumpkin to the saucepan and mash with a potato masher.

In a large bowl, beat pumpkin with evaporated milk, eggs, brown sugar, cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg and salt with an electric mixer or immersion blender. Mix well. Pour into a prepared crust.

Bake 40 minutes or until when a knife is inserted and comes out clean.

If your pumpkin is large enough, you may double this recipe to make two pies.

Cinnamon- Apple Rolls – Easy Bake

This recipe for Cinnamon Apple rolls is an exceptionally great recipe given to me by my Baking Club. As all of my readers know, I never use cake mixes, canned soups or any other type of prepared foods in any of my recipes in my column, but this recipe is an exception because it is from my Baking Club and there are just three ingredients. While baking the aroma wafting from the oven was amazing. This recipe is amazing for a busy person, who has little prep time but wants to make something delicious for family and friend.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees – grease a 9 x 13 baking pan

Ingredients and Directions

2 cans of Pillsbury cinnamon rolls
1 can of apple pie filling
½ cup chopped nuts

Cut the cinnamon rolls in quarters and place in a large bowl add the apple pie filling and the nuts.

Mix all together well.

Pour into greased 9 x 13 baking pan, bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Top with icing while warm from oven.

Raisin Spice Cake

This recipe has been in my column before, and it is wonderful spice cake recipe that I received from my mother and I have baked dozens of times over the years. This spice cake is delicious and it is a must for Thanksgiving Day. The nice thing is the ingredients can all be blended in one pot.

Preheat oven to 350 – With a pastry brush thoroughly grease a bundt pan
Bring 2 cups of water to a boil.
Add: 1 cup of Raisins
Boil for 5 minutes
Turn off heat and add:
1 stick of unsalted butter and mix well
In a separate bowl add:
1 ¾ cups of flour
1 cup of sugar (you can also use ¾ cup instead)
1 teaspoon of Baking Soda
1 teaspoon of Cloves (ground cloves)
1 teaspoon of ginger
1 heaping teaspoon of cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon of nutmeg

Mix all dry ingredients together. Add Raisin mixture to the dry ingredients and mix well.

Pour into a well-greased bundt pan.

Bake at 350 for about 35 minutes or until toothpick or fork come out clean. You can use a cake pan or bundt pan; maybe even a loaf pan.

Frost or ice the cake ~ this is optional. (Ssee icing recipe below)

Icing Recipe
Milk
Butter (1 stick)
1 box Confectionary Sugar

Mix together confectionary sugar and butter or margarine and milk two tablespoons at a time. You may need 6 or 8 tablespoons, watch consistency before each addition.

You want frosting/icing to be thick and creamy.

Sausage Stuffing

It is so hard to believe that Thanksgiving is just around the corner and this is a recipe for Sausage Stuffing.

I consider stuffing to be the most important side dish to go with a turkey dinner. And today the recipe is made with sausage and chestnuts.

If you don't like sausage, you can use mushrooms and chestnuts if you prefer.

Ingredients and Directions

3 sweet sausages, skinned or fresh equivalent
1 cup of cooked chestnuts cut in half
(If using mushrooms use a package of sliced mushrooms cut in half)
2 tablespoons oil (olive oil or vegetable oil)
2 stalks of celery, diced
1 small onion chopped.
1 large bag of stuffing mix (I use Pepperidge Farm)
Soak with water or chicken stock
¼ cup sherry wine or white wine (optional)

Sauté the onion and celery, add the sausage meat and the chestnuts or mushrooms for a couple of minutes.

Add the stuffing mix and mix until well blended.

Now you can do use this stuffing in either of two ways.

Either place the stuffing in a slightly greased casserole dish or make sure that the stuffing is cooled completely and then stuff the turkey. (This is your choice.)

Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes if using a casserole dish.

Ann Marie's Five Ingredient Corn Casserole

There is nothing like eating sweet, fresh, buttery corn on the cob on a warm summer day. When summer is over you can still enjoy the great taste of corn – just a little differently.

I was given this recipe for Corn Casserole from my daughter, Ann Marie and I liked it because it has five easy ingredients with items most of us already have at home in our kitchens.

The only thing about this recipe is that it uses Jiffy Mix and I am a "from scratch" cook, but when you try and taste today's recipe you will be delighted with the results.

This recipe would be excellent as a Thanksgiving side dish - simple to make and delicious!!

Preheat oven to 350 degrees; grease an 8 x 8 baking dish

1 15-ounce corn niblets - drained
1 15 ounce can creamed corn - not drained
1 cup sour cream
½ cup melted butter
1 package of Jiffy Corn Muffin mix

In a bowl mix the two cans or corn, butter and sour cream blending well.

Then fold in Jiffy Corn Muffin mix, mixing until well blended.

Pour batter in prepared pan and bake in a 350-degree oven for 30 – 35 minutes.

You can double this recipe, but it will take a bit longer to bake. Top should be lightly browned.

Social Security Matters

About Paying SS Tax While Still Working

By RUSSELL GLOOR
National Social Security Advisor
at the AMAC Foundation, The Non-Profit Arm of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: Upon being let go in 2009 at age 65 from my full time job of 30 years, I immediately applied for Social Security for my wife and I to live on while seeking employment. Not finding anything full time, I ended up working part time for the past 9 years driving a school bus for an hourly wage. Even though my wife and I are collecting Social Security, my wages are still being taxed for it. While I don't feel this is fair, the real rub (to me) is the fact that my Social Security payroll deductions for the past nine years do not seem to be resulting in an increase in the amount of Social Security we receive. Meanwhile, a friend, who is our age and a business owner, mentioned the amount he is taxed for SS as a sole proprietor is somehow being returned to him from time to time. Therefore, could you please explain what's happening here and whether we are due some kind of adjustment? Signed: Working Still at 74

Dear Still Working: I cannot comment on your friend's assertion that as a sole proprietor business owner his self-employment SS tax is somehow being "returned to him from time to time." I can, however, tell you that the rules for business owners are the same as for those who do not own a business, except that a business owner pays both the employee and employer portion of Social Security employment taxes.

Essentially, the only way paying into Social Security now (via payroll taxes or self-employment taxes) will increase your SS benefit amount is if your income in any recent year is more than your earnings in any of the 35 highest earning years over your lifetime used to compute your SS benefit. When your Social Security benefit was originally computed, all years in your lifetime earnings history through age 59 were adjusted for inflation and the highest earning 35 years were selected to develop your "average indexed monthly earnings" (AIME). A formula was applied to your AIME to determine your "Primary Insurance Amount" or "PIA," which is the amount you get if you claim benefits to start in the month you reach your full retirement age (FRA). If you claimed at age 65, your SS benefit was slightly reduced from your PIA because you claimed before your FRA.

Although you have been and are still working part time, and you're paying into Social Security while doing so, your personal SS benefit will not increase unless your current earnings are more than any of those in the 35 years originally used to determine your benefit when you claimed. The inflation adjustment influences your past years' earnings more than you might expect; for example, $50,000 earned in 1990 would require more than $125,000 in today's earnings to change your benefit. Remember that your contributions to Social Security while you are working do not go into a personal account for you. All who work are required to pay into Social Security, and the money paid is used to help pay benefits to those already receiving Social Security. And that doesn't change when you start collecting SS – if you continue to work you must still pay Social Security tax and the money you pay goes to help pay benefits for all recipients.

Gora added that Adams instilled to his son, John Quincy Adams, the "importance of moral character, self-discipline, and a strong educational foundation."

"So many of the ideals of the nation we know today are due to the foundation of our educational system and civic responsibility promoted by John Adams," she said.

Woodward School senior Zoe Maher said that the recent events of the pandemic, a divided nation, insurrection, propaganda, and a government in turmoil "never thought could or would describe the historical context of my high school experience."

She connected today's uncertainty to the uncertainty that John and Abigail Adams must have faced during their lives. For them, Maher explained, it was all about duty to the nation.

"Duty was the driving force of John Adams' life," she said. "He was bound by duty. Duty to the cause of America, duty to the common good. For John and Abigail Adams, duty was synonymous with sacrifice."

She said that duty brought Adams overseas to serve as a diplomat and to later hold this country's highest office, and it was duty that kept Abigail here to maintain their Quincy farm in John's absence.

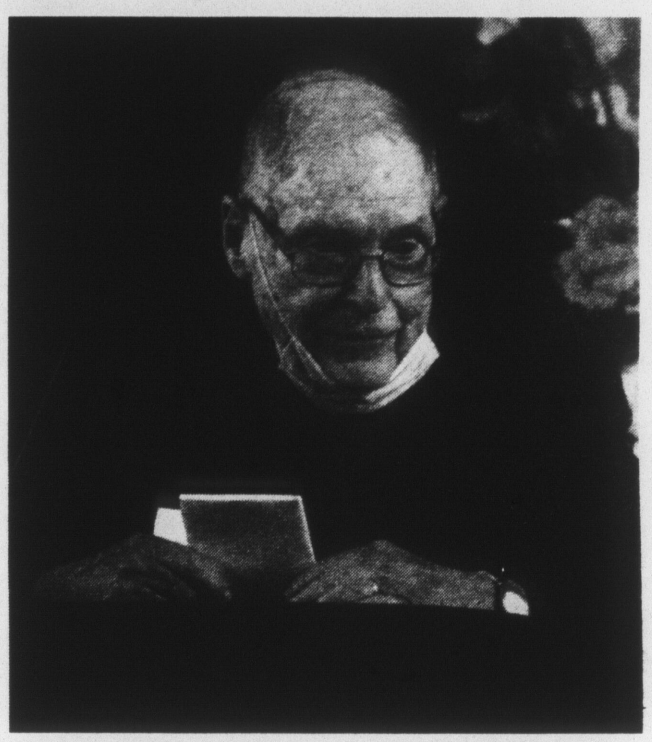

Maher went on to say that we should emulate Adams' sense of duty.

"If we approach everything that we do with awareness, consideration, kindness, empathy, and humor, if we recognize this as our duty, then every aspect of our society will not only benefit, but it will thrive," she said. "Without devoting ourselves to each other, to the people of our society, we can never truly devote ourselves to democracy."

Kelly Cobble of the Adams National Historical Park credited John Adams' parents for instilling into him "honesty, empathy, and fairness," values that shaped his character. She detailed his life and political career, noting that Adams' greatest achievement was negotiating the Treaty of Paris ending the Revolutionary War.

"That was the jewel in his crown after a life of dedicated public service," said Cobble.

Cobble said that Adams once wrote that American citizens' "obligations to our country never cease."

UNITED FIRST PARISH Church historian Bill Westland explains that the Presidential Wreath laying, honoring deceased presidents on their birthdays, began more than 50 years ago.
Quincy Sun photo/Tom Gorman

She added that Adams will be remembered for his moral leadership.

"His sense of duty has us remember him for his determination, integrity, and honesty," she said.

The ceremony concluded with the laying of the Presidential Wreath on Adams' tomb in the crypt in the basement of the church by an honor guard from the Quincy Naval Operational Support Center.

Church historian Bill Westland said that President Lyndon Johnson, who began the tradition of sending wreaths to be placed on deceased ex-presidents' tombs on their birthdays, and that the "with the Adamses, the name would always represent 'president.'"

Westland added that Adams would be "upset about the division now in the country" and that Adams once said that the government must rule with "decency and respect."

Quincy Veteran John King Recognized As Norfolk County Hero

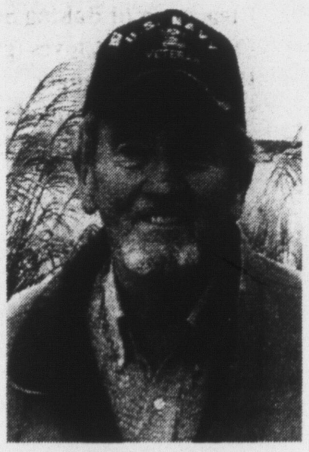

Norfolk County Sheriff Patrick McDermott announces today Navy veteran John King of Quincy is the newest recipient of the Norfolk County Heroes Award.

King has been volunteering to provide rides to other veterans so they can get to medical appointments, go shopping, or simply enjoy a ride and some companionship.

Sheriff McDermott said that King's service to his fellow veterans is the kind of selfless devotion to others that is a hallmark of the Norfolk County Heroes Award program.

"John King sets an example for all of us in his dedication to making life better for those who have already given so much to our country," McDermott said. "As the son of a World War II Navy veteran, I appreciate all that John does to support those who served. It is clear that John's commitment to serving others is deeply engrained."

King has been volunteering with the "Ride for Veterans" program, which is run by the Norfolk County RSVP Volunteer Program. The program pairs veterans in need of rides to VA appointments or others needs with volunteers in the community. As part of the program, King has helped veteran riders from Quincy, Braintree, and Weymouth get to appointments in VA hospitals across the state.

JOHN KING

Yet King goes above even the requirements of the program, frequently providing food and resources to the veterans he drives, organizing car parades for birthdays, and spontaneously taking riders to visit personally meaningful locations, such as cemeteries or former bases where they had been stationed.

"One of the reasons that I got involved with the program to drive vets can be summed up by Tom Brokaw's description of the men and women of World War II as 'the greatest generation,'" said King. "And he was right on. I think this is one of the reasons I enjoy helping veterans get around and getting to know some of them on a personal level."

People interested in participating in the "Ride for Veterans" program run by the Norfolk County RSVP Volunteer Program can call (781) 329-5728 or visit the Norfolk County Commissioners website at https://www.norfolkcounty.org/county-administration/commissioners-office/.

The Norfolk County Heroes program was created earlier this year to recognize acts of heroism, community building, and public service by residents of Norfolk County. To nominate someone for the Norfolk County Heroes Award, visit https://www.norfolksheriff.com/norfolkcountyheroes.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE SGT. KARYN BARKAS
Public Information Officer
Quincy Police Department

On Friday, Oct. 29, members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit were conducting surveillance in the North Quincy area.

At approximately 9 p.m., detectives observed a 2021 black Honda Passport traveling south on Hancock St. A query of the license plate revealed the vehicle was stolen. A few minutes later, detectives located the vehicle parked in the Knights of Columbus parking lot. There was a function going on at the time with several people standing in the parking lot. It appeared the vehicle was unoccupied. The crowd then went into the function hall.

Surveillance was set up on the vehicle. At approximately 10:20 p.m., several people exited the function hall and walked towards the stolen Honda Passport and quickly entered. Detectives observed a black male enter the front passenger seat and a black male and two black females enter the rear passenger side. Detectives could not see who entered the driver's seat or if anyone else had gotten into the rear driver's side seat. The vehicle quickly pulled north onto Hancock St.

A detective radioed Quincy Police Communications and advised that he was behind a stolen motor vehicle and asked for a marked cruiser to assist with stopping the vehicle. There were several cruisers in the area. Officers positioned themselves behind the stolen vehicle and illuminated their blue emergency lights in an attempt to conduct a felony stop of the stolen Honda Passport. The operator of the Honda Passport initially started to drive towards the side of the road and then immediately accelerated away from the police in the area of Hancock Street and Kendall Street.

Officer Hartnett radioed to communications the failure to stop. Quincy Communications immediately terminated the pursuit as the stolen Honda Passport had just accessed the on-ramp to the Neponset Bridge. All Quincy cruisers turned off their emergency lights and siren and slowed to normal speed as the Honda Passport fled over the Neponset Bridge. Some of the cruisers were already on the ramp to the bridge and had to continue onto the bridge. When the cruisers reached the top of the bridge, Officer Dabilis observed the Honda Passport in the right lane with all of the doors open and observed several people running from the vehicle towards the neighborhood behind Express Gas at 1154 Morrissey Blvd., Dorchester.

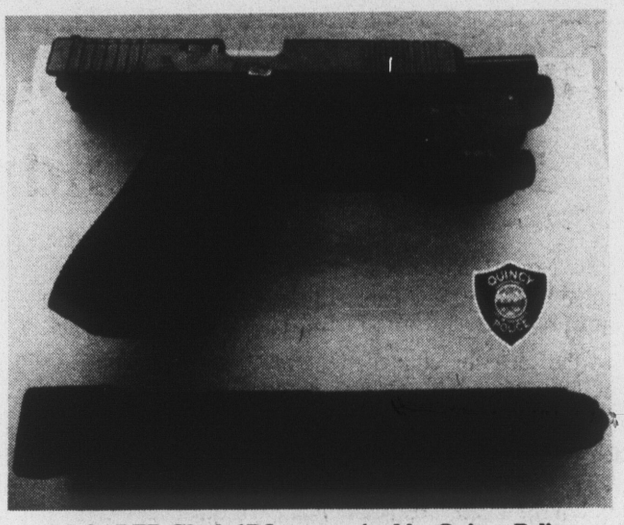

As Officer Dabilis got closer, he observed that the Honda Passport had been involved in an accident with two other vehicles, one of which was in the middle lane with major rear end damage. Officer Dabilis advised communications of this. Officers checked on the passengers of the other vehicles involved in the crash and initially began to search for the occupants of the stolen vehicle. When Officer Dabilis arrived at the Honda Passport, he observed a firearm in the map pocket of the rear passenger side door. Officer Dabilis updated communication of the located firearm.

Quincy Communications advised the Massachusetts State Police and Boston Police of what had occurred and multiple units from both agencies arrived to assist. After a few minutes, the State Police and Boston Police observed three males in the area of Taylor St and Finnegan Park who began to run upon seeing the police.

The first defendant, a 20-year-old from Stoughton, was placed into custody by Trooper DeCastro and Moore after they observed him running through the backyards in the area of Walnut Street, Dorchester. The defendant was positively identified as the individual a Quincy Police detective saw entering the vehicle.

The second defendant, a 23-year-old from Mattapan, was located on the back porch of a residence on Walnut Street, Dorchester, and placed into custody by Boston Police Officers Russell and Woods. He was positively identified as one of the males a Quincy Police detective observed walking towards the Honda.

The third defendant, a 20-year old from Waltham, ran into the tall grass off of Taylor St towards the water when he observed the police. Trooper Henson and his K-9 Mattis located him hiding in the tall grass across from a residence on Taylor Street. A Quincy Police detective identified him as the male he observed getting into the back seat of the Honda Passport.

Two females, a 19-year-old from Stoughton and a 19-year-old from Boston were located, identified and sent on their way. Detectives could not positively identify them as the females that had entered the Honda.

The Honda Passport was searched. The firearm located in the rear passenger side map pocket was a Glock 17 9mm which contained an extended 30 round magazine. The magazine contained (16) 9 mm rounds and there was (1) 9mm round in the chamber. The Honda Passport was inventoried and towed.

All three defendants were charged with receiving stolen motor vehicle, possession of firearm without firearm ID, illegal possession of ammunition, possession of large capacity feeding device, carrying a firearm without a license, carrying a loaded firearm without a license, improper storage of a firearm. The Glock 17 will be sent to the Mass State Police Crime Lab for further analysis. Great work!

End Of Daylight Savings Means More Emphasis On Safety, Says AAA

Motorists should not fall back into bad driving habits with the end of daylight saving time, says AAA Northeast. While the time change Nov. 7th brought an initial extra hour of sleep, drivers need to be focused on the road as it gets darker earlier. The dangers of drowsy driving and the challenges of driving in the dark are always present but never more so than when drivers suddenly find changing conditions.

"Drowsy driving is a significant traffic safety issue," said Mary Maguire, Director of Public and Government Affairs. "Americans 'falling back' by moving their clocks back by one hour may think they are gaining an extra hour of sleep, but many people find they don't sleep as well in the weeks following the clock change—which can lead to driving tired."

Marian Berkowitz, Director of the Drowsy Driving Prevention Project in Massachusetts, lost her brother to a drowsy driving crash. "My brother fell asleep at the wheel when he was driving by himself back to graduate school in North Carolina on a Monday night after the fall clock change. Drivers have to rest and stay alert."

According to AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety research:

• Almost all motorists view drowsy driving as very or extremely dangerous, but 17% admitted to driving when they were so tired that they had a hard time keeping their eyes open at least once in the previous 30 days before the survey (2020 Traf-

The Nov. 2 ballot also featured four contested City Council races.

In the race for councillor at-large, incumbent Noel DiBona finished in first place with 7,732 votes and was also the top vote getter in all six wards. Fellow incumbents Anne Mahoney (6,917 votes) and Nina Liang (6,720) were also re-elected. Challenger William Burke came in fourth 2,705 votes.

DiBona and Liang were elected to their fourth terms on the council and Mahoney her third. DiBona and Mahoney both previously served on the school board.

In the Ward 1 council race, incumbent David McCarthy bested challenger Joseph Murphy, 1,493 to 931. McCarthy, a former member of the School Committee, won a third term and has defeated Murphy in each of the last three elections.

McCarthy swept all five precincts in Ward 1, which includes Houghs Neck, Germantown, Merrymount and parts of Quincy Center and Quincy Point.

In the Ward 2 council race, incumbent Anthony Andronico defeated challenger Steven Perdios, 851 to 546. Andronico topped the ballot in all six precincts in the ward, which covers most of Quincy Point and Penn's Hill.

Andronico was appointed to the Ward 2 seat in January following the resignation of long-time councillor Brad Croall. Andronico, who had been serving on the School Committee prior to joining the council, said he appreciated the support of the voters of Ward 2 who elected him to his first full term on the council.

"Thank you to the voters of Ward 2 for putting your trust in me to continue serving as your Councillor for the next two years. We won every precinct and finished with over 60 percent of the vote and I am truly humbled by your support," Andronico said in a statement.

"I entered public office four years ago at 24 years old because I wanted to help make a positive difference in my hometown. Although the roles have changed since that time, our goal has always remained the same and I am proud of what we have accomplished. As your Councillor, we have made a lot of progress over the past year to make our neighborhoods a better place to call home.

"We will face many challenges in the years ahead - keeping Quincy affordable, managing traffic and development, repairing our infrastructure, investing in education, and more - but I know we can find solutions if we work together.

"I'd also like to take a moment to thank my opponent, Steve Perdios, who ran a class campaign focused on the issues - which is something we're seeing less of in politics these days.

"I'm looking forward to getting back to work for the people of Quincy."

In the Ward 5 council race, incumbent Charles Phelan Jr. fended off a challenge from Stephen Christo, 1,200 to 797. Phelan was seeking his second consecutive term; he previously represented Ward 5 on the council from 1988 to 1996. Phelan and Christo had faced off two years ago.

In this year's election, Phelan won Precincts 2, 3, 4 and 5 – precincts that cover portions of Wollaston and Hospital Hill. Christo won in Precinct 1, which includes part of Quincy Center and abutting neighborhoods to the south of Quarry and School streets.

The remaining incumbent councillors – Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci. and Ward 6 Councillor William Harris – were all unopposed. Cain garnered 1,169 votes on Election Day, Palmucci finished with 932 and Harris had 1,401.

Cain and Harris were seeking their fourth terms and Palmucci his seventh.

The new City Council term is likely set to begin on Jan. 3. It has yet to be determined whether that ceremony will be held in-person or remotely.

Turnout in the final election was 16.9 percent, with 10,807 of Quincy's 63,938 eligible voters casting ballots. City Clerk Nicole Crispo had predicted a turnout between 15 and 18 percent ahead of Election Day.

Turnout was highest in Ward 1, where 23.5 percent of voters went to the polls. Ward 5 had the second highest turnout at 20.19 percent and Ward 6 was third at 17.74 percent. Ward 3 had the fourth highest turnout (15.25 percent) followed by Ward 2 (14.41 percent) and Ward 4 (10.81 percent).

Bill Would End Life Without Parole Sentence In MA

year. The bill would apply retroactively to those already serving such sentences, making them eligible for parole after serving 25 years, and end the practice prospectively.

Sen. John Keenan, a Quincy Democrat, is among the cosponsors of the legislation. In a recent interview, Keenan said he cosponsored the bill because he believes it is worthy of discussion.

"I have co-sponsored it because I think it is worthy of discussion. Whether it would pass or not, I don't know," Keenan said.

"I generally take the position that if there is strong support on one side or there is strong opposition to it, particularly if there is significant support, then we should move it forward, debate it and make a decision. I'm not a big believer that you just kind of squash bills for the sake of squashing them, so I would co-sponsor it to move it forward."

Conceptually, Keenan said he would support ending life sentences without the possibility parole, but would need to see what the final bill looks like first.

"Depending again on the details of the bill, that would determine whether I would ultimately vote in favor of whatever bill comes before the Senate," he stated.

"Conceptually I think there is some merit to the idea that after 25 years somebody should have the opportunity to make a case, but I also am fully aware that the families of victims have a say in this as well and they go through the trauma of being a victim of a crime, whether it is a loved one or themselves, and they think in a lot of cases that a life sentence means that's it – that they don't have to deal with that trauma. So, I am very sensitive to that as well and that will factor in as to ultimately what I think the bill would look like and whether I would support it ultimately."

"It really comes down to the details," Keenan added. "There has to be a balance between victims and their families' rights and the role of our correctional system. Is it to punish? Is it to rehabilitate?

"There may be some cases where it is quite clear that the person should stay in jail forever and there may be some cases where it is clear that there is no benefit to society in keeping the person incarcerated. It's a really difficult issue, but I think it is something that should be discussed and if the will is to bring it forward, then I would consider it in more detail."

Keenan noted the legislation would not be a get-out-of-jail-free card for those currently sentenced to life without parole, as they would still need to make a case to be released.

"This would not be a get-out-of-jail-free card," he said. "It just gives somebody the ability to apply for parole and they have to go through the entire process of applying and then having a hearing and convincing the parole board that they are suitable for release.

"If there hasn't been rehabilitation, if there hasn't been good behavior, if there is any reason that they shouldn't be released, they wouldn't be, and they would continue on with their life sentence."

Keenan likewise noted there is no definitive proof that life sentences without the possibility of parole deter people from committing crimes.

"I don't know if it has ever been fully proven that the death penalty or life sentences without parole serve as much of a deterrent," he said. :It depends obviously on the crime but so many crimes are crimes of passion. So many crimes are crimes related to substance use for instance, people are intoxicated or things like that.

"There are so many variables as to what causes somebody to commit a crime that results in a life sentence without parole and I'm not sure that in the commission of that crime they are at that moment considering the consequences. I don't know for sure, I've never been in that situation, thankfully, but I'm not sure it is something that they consider when they are in the act of committing the crime."

There are currently more than 1,000 prisoners serving life sentences without the possibility of parole in Massachusetts, Keenan said, based on figures Miranda, the bill's sponsor, has stated. That number is relatively high compared to the Bay State's total population, Keenan said.

"I think New York has significantly fewer life sentences than we do, even though it is a significantly larger state," he said. "We have a relatively high number."

O'Donnell Sees Decline In Norfolk County Real Estate Activity

Register of Deeds William O'Donnell reports an across-the-board decline in real estate activity for Norfolk County in October 2021. Declines were seen in both real estate sales and in mortgage lending.

"The Norfolk County real estate market has started to slow down and decline," O'Donnell said. "There were 14,433 documents recorded at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds which is a 20 percent decrease over last year's October document volume.

"During the month of October in 2021, a total of 1,590 residential and commercial real estate sales were recorded countywide, resulting in a 15 percent drop from the previous year's October numbers. Additionally, the total dollar volume of these residential and commercial sales decreased by 22 perecent to $973.1 million year over year, as well as declined in the average sale price by 1 percent to $1,009,538," O'Donnell noted.

Although there were less mortgages recorded the total amount of money borrowed for mortgages County wide was over 2.5 billon, a 13 percent increase compared to October 2020.

"While some of the mortgages are due to purchases and sales of real estate, other mortgages are due to refinancing existing mortgages," O'Donnell said. "Individuals have different motivations to refinance. Some refinance to reduce their monthly payments, others to take some years off their debt while still others are using the money to pay for home improvements and other capital expenditures."

One continuing cause for concern, however in Norfolk County, was foreclosures. A moratorium on foreclosures in place during the pandemic in 2020 was lifted on October 17, 2020. This moratorium was in place due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds has been closely watching the foreclosure market.

"During October of 2021 there were only 1 foreclosure deed recorded as a result of foreclosure processes taking place in Norfolk County," O'Donnell said. "However, there were 15 Notices to Foreclosure Mortgages, the first step in the foreclosure process, recorded here in Norfolk County in October of 2021. A foreclosure recording is very impactful on those being foreclosed on. During October of 2020 there were 3 Foreclosure Deeds and 2 Notices to Foreclosure Mortgages filed as opposed to this year's 15 Notices to Foreclosure Mortgages."

"These numbers remind us that some of our neighbors continue to face financial challenges," O'Donnell said. "We will continue to monitor these numbers."

Additionally, for the past several years, the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds has partnered with Quincy Community Action Programs, 617-479-8181 x376, and NeighborWorks Housing Solutions, 508-587-0950 to help anyone facing challenges paying their mortgage.

Another option for homeowners is to contact the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at 617-727-8400.

"If you are having difficulty paying your monthly mortgage, please consider contacting one of these nonprofit agencies for help and guidance," O'Donnell said.

Homestead recordings by owners of homes and condominiums decreased this year at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in October. There was a 22 percent decrease in homestead recordings in October 2021 compared to October 2020.

"A Homestead," noted O'Donnell, "provides limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000. It is great to see folks protecting the biggest asset most of us have, our homes. I would urge anyone who has not availed themselves of this important consumer protection tool to consider doing so. Please visit the Registry website at www.norfolkdeeds.org to get more information on homestead protection."

O'Donnell concluded:

"Without question October was a disappointing month for real estate activity in Norfolk County. Available real estate inventory continues to be a constant source of concern in Norfolk County. It's especially been a problem for first-time homebuyers attempting to crack the market. Also, things may be slowing down compared to past real estate indicators.

"The Registry of Deeds was operational every work day during the pandemic. The Registry of Deeds continues to be open to the public for business, however that is being evaluated as the COVID-19 developments unfold. The drop-off box located at the main entrance of the Registry Building for the time being will continue to be available for use by those members of the public who may not be comfortable in entering the Registry of Deeds Building.

"Land documents are being recorded electronically for many of our institutional users. We are also receiving documents in person, via regular mail, Federal Express and from those placed in our drop-off box located just outside our main entrance at 649 High Street, Dedham, MA."

City Receives New Rescue/Disaster Response Vehicle

The City of Quincy Office of Emergency Management recently received a new rescue/disaster response vehicle.

City officials said the Polaris Ranger all terrain utility vehicle (UTV) will significantly improve emergency response times in the city to reach locations, both urban and off-road, where larger emergency vehicles generally cannot operate. The vehicle features a two-person medical transport skid and 4,500-pound capacity rescue winch.

The vehicle will be immediately available for emergency response operations to both the Quincy Fire and Police Departments, as well as Brewster ambulance, the city's emergency medical services partner. Funding for the $25,600 vehicle was made possible through the Department of Homeland Security, FEMA Emergency Management Performance Grant (EMPG) program.

"While initially procured primarily for off-road emergency response, and search and rescue operations, the versatility and flexibility of the vehicle will also enable its utilization for additional contingencies such as responding to emergencies on beaches, flooding, and potential storm related damage throughout the city," said Emergency Management Director Ally Sleiman.

POLARIS RANGER all terrain utility vehicle will be used to respond to rescues and disasters according to city officials. Funding for the $25,600 vehicle was made possible through the Department of Homeland Security, FEMA Emergency Management Performance Grant (EMPG) program.

End Of Daylight Savings Means More Emphasis On Safety, Says AAA

fic Safety Culture Index).

• Drivers who have slept for less than 5 hours have a crash risk comparable to someone driving drunk.

• Drivers who miss one to two hours of sleep can nearly double their risk for a crash.

AAA recommends that drivers:

• Should not rely on their bodies to provide warning signs for drowsiness and should instead prioritize getting at least seven hours of sleep before hitting the road.

• Travel at times of the day when they are normally awake.

• Avoid heavy foods.

• Avoid medications that cause drowsiness or other impairment.

Driving in the Dark & Headlights

"Dark conditions can make it harder to see when driving. Lack of visibility can make for unsafe driving conditions. As we adjust to the end of daylight saving time, it's a good time to check the illumination of your headlights," Maguire said.

• With 50% of crashes occurring at night, drivers should check their headlights for signs of deterioration and invest in new headlights or, at a minimum, a low-cost service visit to boost the safety of driving after dark.

o Headlights can show signs of deterioration after 3 years but most commonly by year 5.

• AAA suggests drivers check their headlights for changes in appearance such as yellowing or clouding. If the bulb is difficult to see, it is time to have the lens replaced or restored as soon as possible.

o Replacement and restoration services are available at most repair shops, including AAA Approved Auto Repair facilities.

o Do-it-yourself restoration offers some savings for consumers, is relatively simple, and provides a sufficient improvement in light output.

o Make sure headlights are correctly re-aimed to maximize forward lighting performance and minimize glare to oncoming and preceding drivers.

• Compensate for reduced visibility by decreasing your speed and increasing following distance to four or more seconds behind the car in front of you.

• Older drivers should recognize that at age 60 it takes three times more light to see the roadway than it did at age 20, and if possible plan driving times accordingly.

• Keep your eyes moving. Do not focus on the middle of the area illuminated by your headlights. Watch for sudden flashes of light at hilltops, around curves, or at intersections, because these may indicate the presence of oncoming vehicles.

• Look at the sides of objects. In the dim light, focus on the edges or outlines of objects. Your eyes can pick up images more sharply this way than by looking directly at the object.

• Avoid being blinded by oncoming high beams. If the driver of an oncoming vehicle fails to dim the lights, look down toward the right side of the road. You should be able to see the edge of the lane or the white-painted edge line and stay on course until the vehicle passes.

South Quincy Bus Facility Community Meeting Nov. 18

The MBTA will hold a public meeting on Thursday, Nov. 18, to provide an update on the transit agency's plans to build a new bus maintenance facility in South Quincy.

The meeting will take place from 5:30 to 7 p.m. that evening and will be held remotely via Zoom. The public can sign up for the meeting by visiting mbta.com/quincybus.

At this meeting, MBTA project staff will provide design updates, discuss the upcoming demolition of the existing building and construction of the public shared-use path, review the project timeline, and facilitate a question and answer period to address community concerns.

The meeting is accessible to people with disabilities. The MBTA provides reasonable accommodations and/or language assistance free of charge upon request, including but not limited to interpreters in American Sign Language (ASL) and languages other than English, open or closed captioning for videos, assistive listening devices, and alternate material formats, such as audio tapes, braille, and large print, as available.

For accommodation or language assistance, please contact Lydia Rivera at 617-851-1095, or email QuincyBus@mbta.com. Requests should be made as early as possible prior to the meeting. For more difficult-to-arrange services including ASL, captioning in real time (CART), or language translation or interpretation, requests should be made at least seven business days before the meeting.

MBTA officials in 2020 announced plans to build the new bus maintenance facility at 599 Burgin Parkway, formerly home to a Lowe's home improvement store. The new facility would replace the century-old facility currently in use at 954 Hancock St., which T officials have said is too small to handle newer buses.

Last fall, MBTA officials said the new maintenance facility could open in late 2024 at a projected cost of $250 million. T officials also said the agency would purchase between 20 and 50 all-electric buses to operate out of the building once it opens. Local residents and elected officials had urged the MBTA to purchase the electric buses, which create less air and noise pollution in the surrounding neighborhood than their hybrid or diesel counterparts.

ON HALLOWEEN Ms. Melanie, Ms. Kathleen, Ms. Amanda and Ms. Yamini took their Broad Horizons Preschool kids on a Halloween parade to the Mayor's Office to put a smile on their faces. They also shared some time with Quincy Police Officers patrolling the Hancock-Adams Common.

Remembering Frank McCauley - Quincy's 30th Mayor

in 1968. He held that position until his retirement upon his election as Quincy's mayor in 1981.

Political Career

McCauley's interest in politics began in the late 1950s, when a proposed urban renewal plan threatened to take his Hough's Neck home and those of his neighbors. He began attending city council meetings regularly and in 1959, he made his first run for elective office, seeking a seat as councillor-at-large. He finished last in a field of six candidates.

"When I announced my candidacy, I was a political unknown," McCauley liked to quip, "and by the end of election night, I was still a political unknown!"

McCauley would run again, however, and in 1963 he was elected Ward 1 councillor, a seat he held for two terms. During the 1970s, he served on the School Committee before moving over to the City Council, where he served two terms as councillor-at-large. In 1981, he was elected mayor, winning in a landslide by nearly 6,000 votes.

Mayoral Term of Office

McCauley entered the mayor's office in January 1982 with a number of challenges facing Quincy. The city was running a $10 million free cash deficit, its credit rating had dropped and concerns had been raised about the operations at the municipally-owned hospital. Pollution was rampant in Quincy Bay. In the schools, meanwhile, a 50 percent drop in enrollment following the end of the Baby Boom had resulted in the closing of numerous public schools, angering city residents.

The new mayor wasted no time in establishing a tight rein over city finances. Drawing on his financial background, McCauley worked to eliminate government waste, assuming personal responsibility for preparing the city's budget. He completed the school closings already in progress and implemented a school reorganization plan, instituting the middle-school plan still in effect today. And on the recommendation of then City Solicitor William Golden, McCauley filed the lawsuit that led to the creation of the Mass. Water Resources Authority and the ultimate clean-up of Quincy Bay.

Within five years, McCauley had turned the $10 million free cash deficit into a $10 million surplus, earning national recognition when McCauley was selected by the U.S. Conference of Mayors to receive its Financial Leadership Award. McCauley was later chosen to lead the U.S. Conference

BEFORE BEING ELECTED mayor in 1981, Frank McCauley served four years as a councillor at-large. In an interview with The Quincy Sun after winning an at-large seat in 1977, McCauley said: "The most important thing is a good independent City Council that offers criticism and suggestions when the mayor needs them."

At the same time, the McCauley administration upgraded the Quincy Police Station, built a new animal shelter and completed a renovation and addition to Quincy City Hospital. Private development also boomed: McCauley's eight years as mayor saw the construction of both Presidents Place and the Crown Colony Office Park.

In July 1988, as a credentialed reporter for The Quincy Sun, McCauley covered the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta. McCauley wrote a number of articles on the convention, at which Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis received the Democratic nomination for president. Dukakis was later defeated by Republican nominee George H.W. Bush.

Changing Times

McCauley's term of office coincided with a dramatic change in the city population, as an influx of Asian immigrants came to Quincy. His administration was credited with welcoming the new residents, securing state funding for adult ESL classes and instituting a computerized language translation service at the police department. The city also hired a community education coordinator, a trilingual outreach advocate and an emergency interpreter for the police. For its efforts, the McCauley administration received a gubernatorial citation in 1989 recognizing its Asian outreach initiatives.

After serving four terms as mayor, McCauley decided not to run again, leaving the mayor's office in January 1990. The following year, he began a six-year term as executive director of the State Retirement Board under State Treasurer Joseph Malone. In 1996, he returned to the Quincy School Committee and in 1997, he was re-elected to the City Council. He served as a councillor-at-large until January 2006, ending his political career as the council president. In addition to serving four terms as mayor, McCauley served in public office under seven other mayors: Amelio Della Chiesa, James McIntyre, Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, James Sheets and William Phelan.

That experience would prove useful when in the late 1990s McCauley authored a book on Quincy's political history at the request of then-Mayor James Sheets as part of the city's millennial commemorations. After his retirement from politics, McCauley wrote the weekly "Quincy's Yesterdays" column for The Quincy Sun through December 2011. He was proud of the fact that he compiled 297 columns and never once missed a deadline.

In 2019, McCauley published his autobiography. Frank: From Bootlegger to Banker and Beyond recounted his improbable rise from clam digger to mayor. The book is available on Amazon.com.

Community Service

Less well-known than his political career was McCauley's involvement in numerous charities and community service activities over the years. He served on the Selective Service Board and the Quincy Housing Authority Board in the 1960s and 1970s and later was appointed by Mayor William Phelan to serve on the Quincy Retirement Board..

A member of the Elks Lodge and the McKeon Amvets Post, McCauley was a longtime member and past president of the Quincy Lions Club. In 2010, he became the club's first 50-year member; in recognition of his support for the club's charitable activities, the club honored the milestone by creating the Frank McCauley Community Service Award, presented each year to a local "unsung hero" who aids the community.

McCauley himself was the recipient of numerous community awards, including the Quincy Jewish War Veterans "Man of the Year Award" and The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year Award."

He was also a dedicated Red Cross blood donor, a practice he began during the Blizzard of '78 when the state asked business leaders to rally their employees to give blood. Thereafter, McCauley was a regular donor, personally donating more than 16 gallons of blood to the Red Cross.

Walking for Charity

McCauley was well known around the city for his penchant for walking, and was often seen walking along Wollaston Beach in later years. Much of that walking was done for charity: In addition to regularly participating in the Interfaith Social Services walk and the Walk for Hunger, McCauley participated in the 26.2-mile Jimmy Fund Marathon Walk six times, personally raising more than $34,000 to fight cancer in children. In later years, he walked for exercise and enjoyment, logging 28,000 miles between 1997 and 2012.

In April 2020, McCauley and his wife, Sandra, contracted COVID 19; while he recovered, she succumbed to the illness. Following her death, McCauley moved to Florida to live with his daughter before moving to a memory care facility. He would survive a second bout with COVID and several health challenges before passing away on the 40th anniversary of his first election as Quincy's mayor.

McCauley is survived by his five children: Michael J. (Elise) of Quincy, Robert H. (Sharon) of Natick, Melissa Higgins (Steven) of Holbrook, Julie Tympanick (John) of Plymouth, and Jennifer Logue (David) of Ponte Vedra, Fla.; 13 grandchildren and a great-grandson.

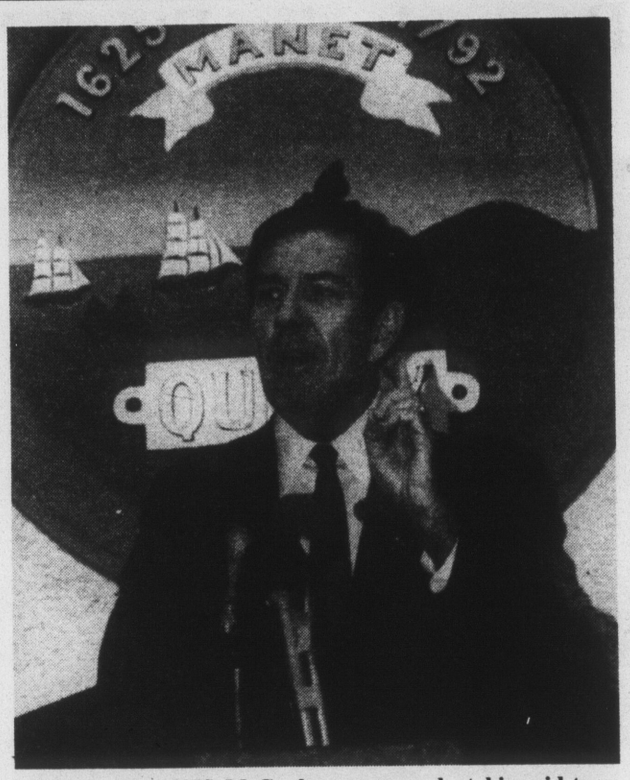

Interment with military honors was at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

MAYOR FRANCIS McCauley announced at his mid-term address in early January, 1989, that he would not seek a fifth term that fall. Reflecting on his decision, McCauley said: 'It is better to leave too soon than stay too long" and then concluded his address and announcement with one word: "Sayonara." McCauley remains the only Quincy resident to be elected to all four municipal offices: ward councillor, councillor at-large, school committee and mayor. In 1996, he returned to the Quincy School Committee and in 1997, he was re-elected to the City Council. He served as a councillor-at-large until January 2006, ending his political career as the council president.

Koch: McCauley 'No-Nonsense Leader'

Mayor Thomas Koch ordered flags at all public facilities in Quincy be lowered to half-staff Tuesday in memory and tribute to former Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley who passed away Nov. 3 at the age of 91.

Mr. McCauley's funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday morning at Holy Trinity Parish at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck.

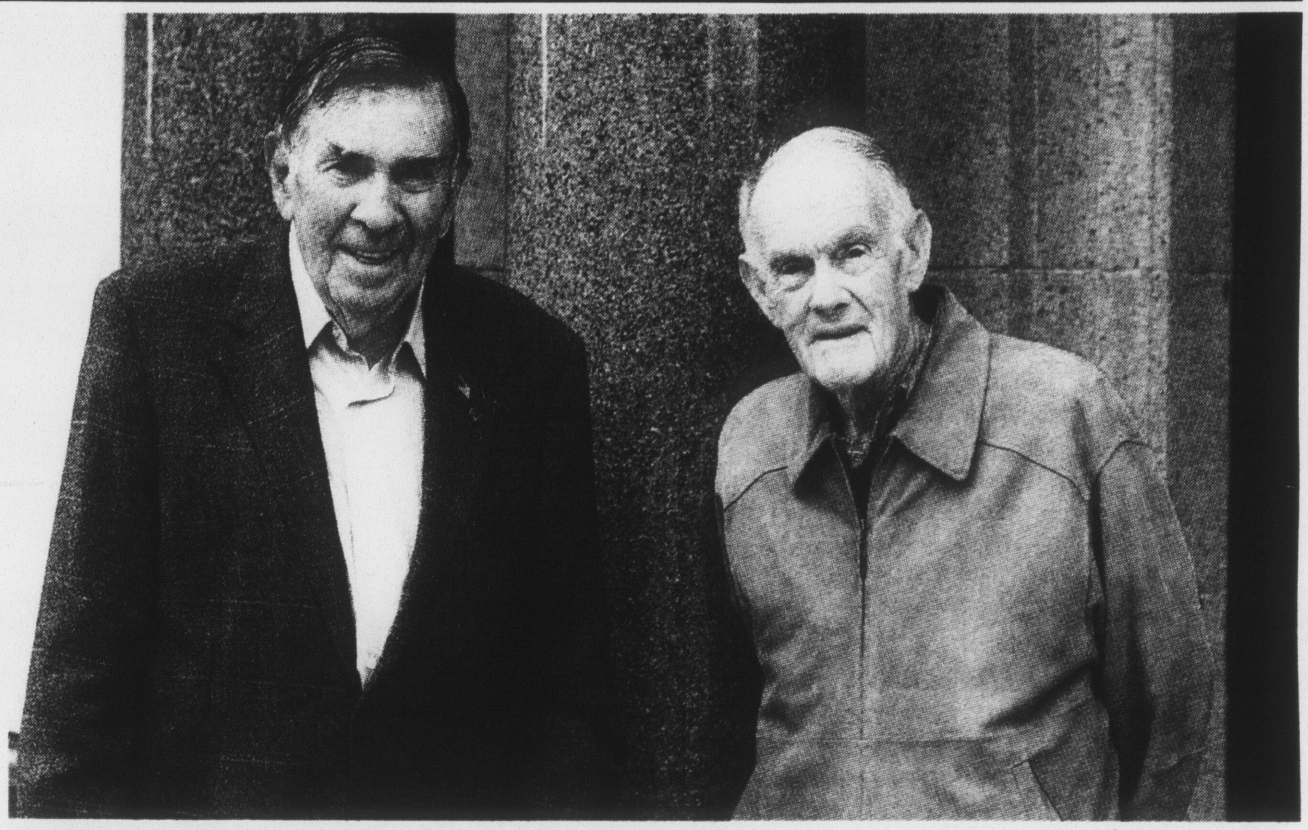

In a statement following news of Mr. McCauley's passing, Koch called the city's 30th mayor "a no-nonsense leader" who helped guide the city through the economic challenges of the 1980s including the implementation of Proposition 2 and a half.

"Over the last half-century, few people have given as much of themselves to our beloved city as Frank McCauley, and on behalf a grateful community, I extend my deepest sympathies to his five children and the entire McCauley family.

"He became mayor during one of the most challenging eras of local government -- the implementation of Proposition 2.5. It was a time that required some incredibly difficult decisions, a steadfast resolve, and a singular focus on the city's financial future. He was a no-nonsense leader and suffered no fools, making him a perfect fit to navigate those difficult times and making the city prosper along the way.

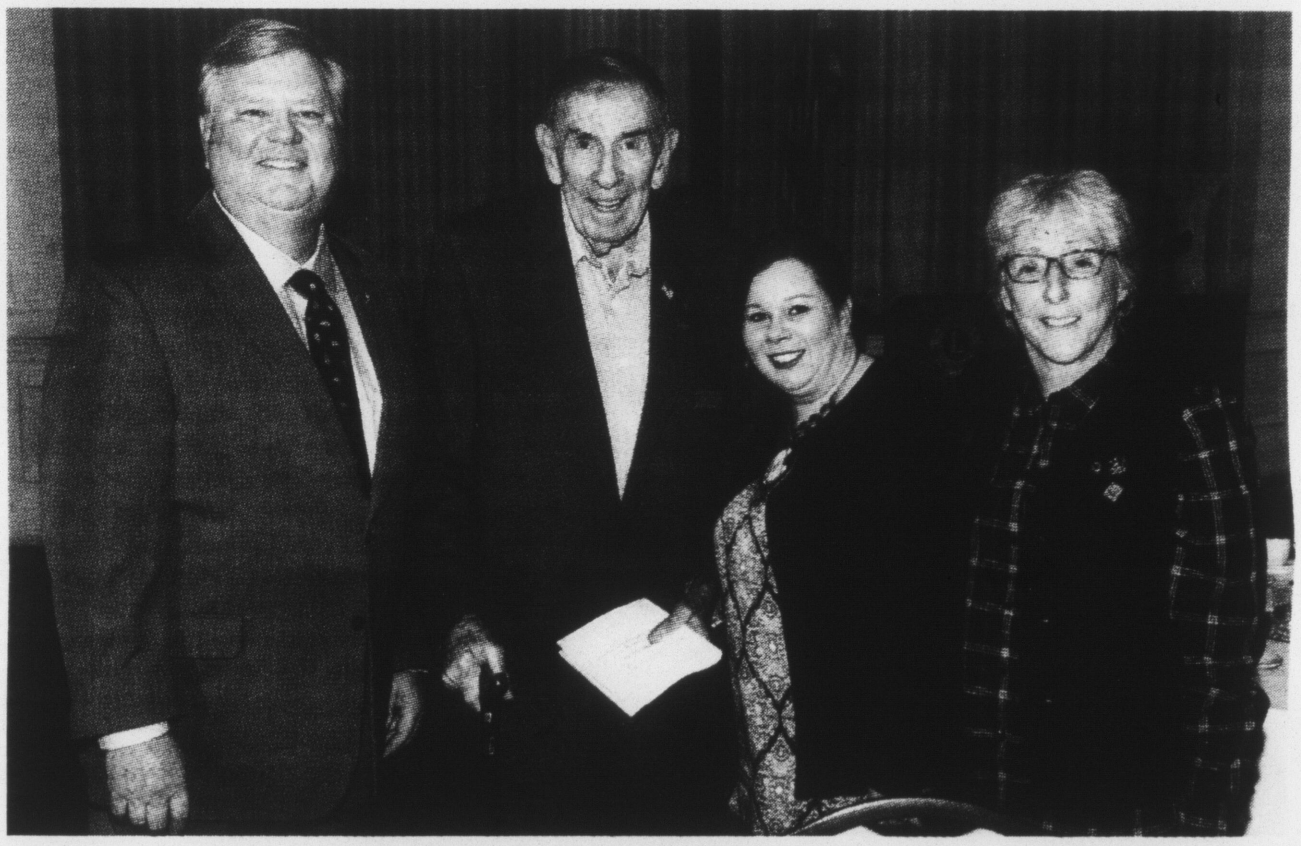

"Beyond his accomplishments as mayor, there is no greater evidence of his love for this City than his returning to elected office as both a School Committee member and City Councilor, always with a sharp eye on the City's bottom line. He truly understood the value of public of service, and he believed in it. He served this community in one way or another for four decades, and we are without question a far better place today because of Frank McCauley.

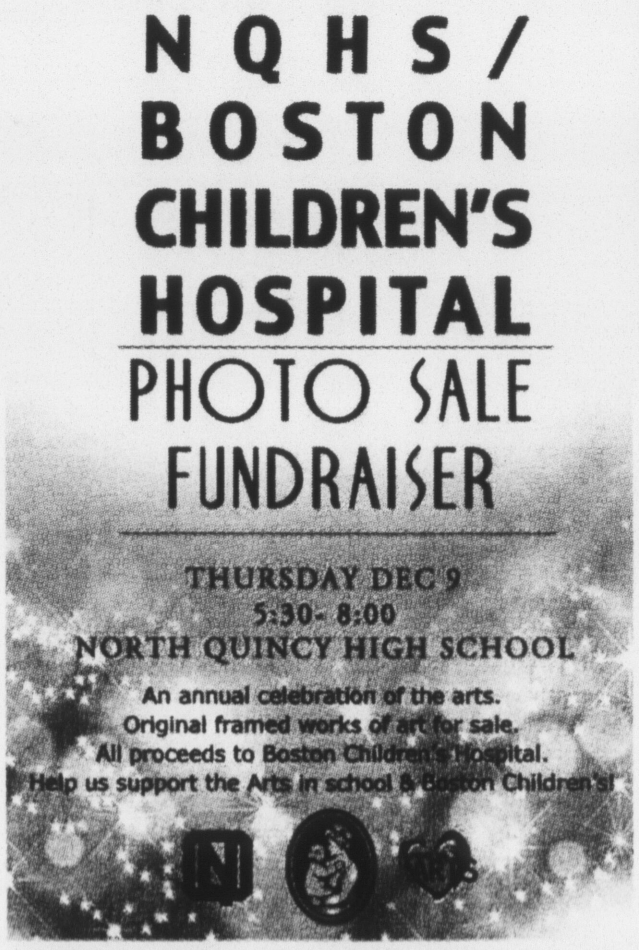

"On a personal note, I will always be incredibly grateful to Frank for giving me my first job in public service as director of the Council on Aging, and through the years I often called on him for advice and counsel. He was never afraid to share his opinion, and it was always appreciated."

FORMER MAYORS Frank McCauley (left) and Walter Hannon, who grew up together in Houghs Neck, marked the 50th anniversary of their first election victories Nov. 5, 2013 at a special reunion at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. On Nov. 5, 1963, McCauley won the Ward 1 council seat while Hannon captured the Ward 5 council seat. Both would later go on to serve the city as mayor.

Honor, Remember The Brave Beyond Veterans Day

By PAUL E. DILLARD

I was elected last summer to lead the nation's largest veterans organization on a platform of "No Veteran Left Behind." Those words seem especially poignant this Veterans Day, which also happens to be the 100th anniversary of the burial of the hero resting at Arlington's Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The name may be unknown, but we do know that the remains are that of an American soldier killed in France during World War I. The soldier represents our nation's commitment to never forget and to never abandon the men and women who have sacrificed, bled and far too often died for us.

PAUL E. DILLARD
American Legion
National Commander

The congressman most responsible for the Tomb's dedication on Armistice Day 1921, Rep. Hamilton Fish, Jr. of New York, was a founding member of The American Legion. He understood that for America to remain the land of the free, it must honor and remember the brave.

Veterans Day can be traced back to the armistice which ended "the Great War," but it has evolved to honor all who have served in the U.S. military. This includes your relatives, your neighbors and people you have never met. It includes the Fortune 500 CEO, the blue-collar worker and the homeless.

While we extend our gratitude to all veterans, it is the vulnerable who most need our support. Far too many veterans take their own lives. A recent report from the Department of Veterans Affairs revealed that in 2019, 17.2 veterans per day committed suicide. USA Today reported that there was a 15 percent increase of suicide among active-duty troops in 2020. These are more than statistics. They are our parents, spouses, children and siblings. We have a moral responsibility to serve them as well as they have served this country.

In The American Legion, we have initiated a "Buddy Check" program of peer-support and outreach to all veterans in our communities. But this is just one tool. We must remove all stigmas associated with asking for help or being diagnosed with PTSD, depression or any condition that could lead one to take his or her own life.

All of us could do more to prevent such tragedies. For starters, we should memorize, publicize and emphasize the Veteran Crisis Line at 1-800-273-8255, extension 1. That number, along with the option to text message at 838255 has been a lifesaver for many veterans in crisis situations. These resources, along with the ability to chat online at www.VeteransCrisisLine.net/chat , can also help those who know a veteran at risk of suicide.

There are many ways to show support for veterans. Hiring veterans and patronizing veteran-owned businesses can be game-changers. Volunteering at a VA facility, donating to your favorite veterans charity and simply thanking a veteran are among the many ways to help.

In addition to personal communications with those who have served, we should expect our elected officials to remember those who enable them to govern, legislate and act on behalf of a free society. Not only should they produce policies that address the health-care needs and wellbeing of all who have served, they should commit to the proposition under which I was elected to lead The American Legion: No Veteran Left Behind.

Paul E. Dillard is a Vietnam War veteran and national commander of the nearly 2 million member American Legion, www.legion.org.

Involuntary Manslaughter Conviction In McCallum Death

on a person over the age of 14, and one count of simple assault. The verdicts came on the second day of jury deliberations following a week-long trial.

Potter was sentenced to serve three to four years in prison after the guilty verdict was announced.

Potter had been accused of fatally punching McCallum, age 44, of Bridgewater. McCallum was rushed to Boston Medical Center around 1 a.m. on Jan. 27, 2019, when he was found bleeding and unconscious outside the Nickerson American Legion Post on Moon Island Road after police responded to a report of a large disorder. McCallum died on Jan. 28, 2019, after being taken off life support.

McCallum was survived by his wife Kathy and their sons Ryan, Michael and Christopher.

In a statement released by her brother, Bill Doyle, Kathy McCallum thanked prosecutors and police for their work during the investigation and trial.

"Our family and friends would like to extend our sincere appreciation to Special Prosecutor Dan Bennett and John Fanning and Meaghan Walker of the Massachusetts State Police for their hard work and dedication to bring us to this day," the statement said.

"We waited just shy of 3 years to receive a small sense of justice following my husband Chris' homicide. We take solace in the knowledge that Matthew Potter has been found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by a jury and will serve 3 to 4 years in prison for his reckless actions, however no sentence will ever equal the life sentence imposed on all of us without Chris in our lives."

Prosecutors had said Christopher McCallum was at the Nickerson Post that night with his brother, William, to see a concert. Matthew Potter was also in attendance at the concern that night with his brother Steven, according to prosecutors.

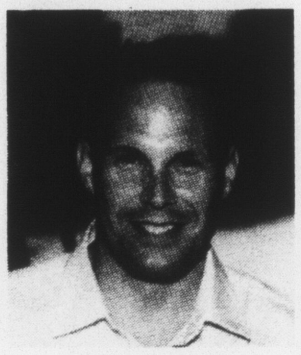

Prosecutors said Christopher McCallum tried to break up a fight in the parking lot between Matthew Potter and William McCallum. Matthew Potter's lawyer, Kevin Reddington, said the McCallum brothers were the aggressors.

The McCallum brothers ended up in a fray with Matthew Potter, who prosecutors said punched Christopher McCallum, who fell and hit his head.

An autopsy conducted by the state medical examiner's office determined McCallum's death was a homicide caused by blunt force trauma.

The Potter brothers were indicted in November 2019 following a months-long investigation. Steven Potter was charged at that time on two counts of assault and one count of assault and battery causing serious bodily injury, and pleaded not guilty at his arraignment. His charges are not related to McCallum's death, prosecutors have said, but to two other victims from the same incident. Steven Potter's trial will be held sometime next year.

Christopher McCallum grew up on Deerfield Street in Squantum and was a 1992 graduate of North Quincy High School. He was captain of North's football and hockey teams his senior year and was inducted into the Quincy-North Quincy High Football Hall of Fame in 2016.

CHRISTOPHER
McCALLUM

Following the Potters' arraignment, Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey named an independent prosecutor, Daniel Bennett, to oversee the case. In a statement announcing the assignment, Morrissey said his office has no direct conflict of interest, but public confidence would be reinforced by the appointment of an independent prosecutor.

Bennett served as the secretary of the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security during Gov. Charlie Baker's first term in office. Before working under Baker, Bennet had been the first assistant district attorney in Worcester County and prior to that had been a prosecutor in Middlesex and Suffolk Counties.

We are proud to honor those who have served our country, and are privileged to offer them our thanks for their embodiment of the ideals that make our nation the greatest on earth.

To Our Veterans,

Thank you for protecting the freedoms we enjoy.

Mayor Tom & Christine Koch

"We remember those who were called upon to give all a person can give, and we remember those who were prepared to make that sacrifice if it were demanded of them in the line of duty, though it never was. Most of all, we remember the devotion and gallantry with which all of them ennobled their nation as they became champions of a noble cause."

Quincy Boys' Soccer Bows To Northampton In Tourney

By TOM JOYCE

If it were a regular season match, it would have been a tie.

However, someone had to win the MIAA Division 2 preliminary round match between the Quincy High boys' soccer team and Northampton High. While the Presidents enjoyed some success on the attack early in the contest at Veterans' Memorial Stadium Nov. 4, Northampton managed to come back in the second half -- and win the game in double overtime. The Presidents lost 3-2, bringing their season to an end. The Presidents went 6-10-3 this season.

The first half went the Presidents' way; they led 2-0 at halftime. However, the second half went the way of Northampton; it put up two goals and shut the Presidents out, forcing the match into overtime.

While neither team had any offensive success in the first 15 minutes of the match, the Presidents changed things shortly after that point.

Antoine Johnson struck at the 16 minute mark, giving the Presidents a 1-0 lead. He found a loose ball to the left of the net. With the Northampton goalkeeper defending the left side, Johnson looked right instead. He grounded the ball across the other side of the net and a Northampton defender tried to make the stop; the defender was unsuccessful and accidentally aided the ball into the back of the net with the back of his foot, securing the score.

Six minutes later, the Presidents doubled their lead. This time, it was Alex Carmona who came up with the goal. He took the shot right out in front of the net with a Northampton defender guarding him. He got the ball off a forward pass; he headed the ball down so that way he could take a shot. The ball went into the top right section of the net.

Although the Presidents took a lead into halftime, the lead didn't last.

Like the first half, there wasn't any scoring at the beginning of the second half. However, that changed at the 51 minute mark when Northampton got its first goal of the day. The goal came on a free kick, making it a 2-1 match.

While the second goal of the half for Northampton didn't come off a free kick, it happened because of one. Northampton took a free kick from the 15-yard line and while the Presidents made the stop, a forward regained possession and quickly took a shot, capitalizing on a second chance opportunity. This tied the match with about five minutes left in regulation, forcing it into overtime.

Neither team scored in the first overtime period, but Northampton struck in the second one to win the match.

The Presidents tried to move the ball downfield, but a Northampton forward got ahold of the ball at the 20-yard line. Uncovered, the Northampton player booted the ball and it went into the top-right part of the net for the game-winning goal.

Although the Presidents didn't have a winning record this season, they made the playoffs because the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association changed its playoff format this year. The MIAA went from a sectional bracket where every team that had at least a .500 winning percentage was guaranteed a playoff spot to a new statewide playoff format. It used power rankings to determine who got a playoff spot, giving the Presidents an opportunity to make it. It took team record, strength of schedule, and margins of victory/defeat into consideration. However, a team couldn't make it into the playoffs if they lost the overwhelming majority of its games just because it played tough regular season competition.

The MIAA let 39 teams into the Division 2 south playoffs; the Presidents were the 31 seed and Northampton was the 34 seed -- hence why they had a preliminary round game where the winner advanced to the Round of 32. In the Round of 32 game against No. 2 seed Masconomet, Northampton lost 6-0. That match took place Nov. 6 at Masconomet.

The new statewide tournament also results in some long trips for teams. Northampton is in Hampshire County near Amherst. The high school in the town is 111 miles from Veterans' Memorial Stadium by car, according to Google Maps.

With their season coming to a close, the Presidents are set to lose a large senior class to graduation. They had 13 seniors on the team this season. Their roster also had six juniors and four sophomores on it. That said, the starting lineup could end up looking a lot different next season.

Quincy Football Falls To Silver Lake

By TOM JOYCE

Both offenses had no issue moving the ball last Friday night.

While the Quincy High football team had plenty of success on offense, the same was true of their opponent, Silver Lake. The two played a tight game, but the Presidents came up short. Silver Lake won the non-playoff game at Veterans' Memorial Stadium 34-28 and the Presidents fell to 4-4 on the season.

The Presidents turned the ball over on downs on their first drive. While quarterback Drew Boretti (9-for-17, 126 yards) picked up a first down on the ground in the drive, it stalled at the Silver Lake 30-yard line after a tackle for a loss on a run play and a few incomplete passes.

Silver Lake responded with a methodical touchdown drive that it capped off early in the second quarter. The team had a 14-yard touchdown run on a shovel pass. Silver Lake kept the drive alive with a conversion on the ground on fourth-and-four around the 30-yard line. Silver Lake missed the extra point, so it led 6-0 with 10:02 left in the first half.

Silver Lake then had a successful onside kick, getting the ball back at the Presidents 47-yard line. It resulted in yet another touchdown drive.

At first, it looked like Silver Lake would punt. This came after linebacker Gabriel Rodrigues batted down a screen pass, defensive lineman Riley O'Connell had a tackle for a loss on the running back, and Silver Lake threw an incomplete pass. However, Silver Lake had a successful fake punt pass for nearly 30 yards to keep the drive going and get into the red zone.

Silver Lake ended up scoring on a fourth-and-one fullback dive. The two-point conversion attempt was no good as defensive back Jacey Ham intercepted the pass.

The Presidents had a quick answer to that touchdown; Stephen Gallant returned the ensuing kickoff to the Silver Lake 25-yard line. While a couple of carries from Jarod Walker (17 rushes, 65 yards) gave the Presidents some ground; Rodrigues (5 carries, 79 yards) punched in the touchdown from 11 yards out on a run up the middle. The two-point conversion attempt was no good; it was an attempted QB power run from Boretti. The Presidents trailed Silver Lake 12-6 with 4:23 remaining.

After the touchdown, the Presidents tried an onside kick but it went out of bounds at the Silver Lake 42-yard line.

Silver Lake couldn't score on the drive despite getting up to the eight-yard line. A holding penalty in the red zone set the team back, as did a tackle by Walker on a run for a one-yard gain. On fourth down, Silver Lake threw an incompletion on an attempted slant route. Defensive back Corey Chaparro was covering the intended receiver.

The stop came with about 30 seconds left in the first half. The Presidents didn't score on their next drive, so it was a 12-6 game at halftime.

Silver Lake started the second half at their own 45-yard line but had to punt after a few plays. A sack by linebacker Caleb Parsons-Gomes and an incompletion on a screen stunted the drive and eventually brought up fourth down.

The Presidents capitalized on the drive. Walker converted on a fourth-and-one with a five-yard run to the outside. Then Boretti hit a wide-open Ham for a 26-yard touchdown pass. Silver Lake blocked the extra point attempt, but the game was tied at 12 with 3:34 left in the third.

Silver Lake ended up turning the ball over on downs on its next drive. Walker had a pair of tackles for losses and Rodrigues and Parsons-Gomes got pressure on the QB to force an incomplete pass on fourth down. This gave the Presidents the ball at their own 43.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, Rodrigues punched in a 51-yard touchdown run up the middle. It came as the Presidents faked a high snap and immediately handed the ball up the middle. Walker converted on the two-point conversion to the outside to put the Presidents up 20-12.

Silver Lake responded with a touchdown on the kick return; the team faked a reverse on the handoff and took it to the end zone for the score. Silver Lake then converted on its two-point conversion attempt with a pass to the corner of the end zone.

The Presidents had to punt shortly after their next drive began after a penalty call set them back five yards and an incompletion brought up fourth down.

Silver Lake scored on its next drive despite some trouble early. The team completed a 42-yard pass on third-and-13 on its first set of downs; this got Silver Lake to the 23-yard line. A couple of plays later, Silver Lake had a 14-yard touchdown run to the outside; the team went up 28-20 with a successful two-point conversion run with six minutes left in the bout.

Silver Lake got the ball back shortly thereafter. The Presidents went for the long ball on the second play of their new drive, but Silver Lake intercepted the pass near the Presidents 25-yard line.

On the third play of the new drive, Silver Lake had a 49-yard run to get into the red zone. Silver Lake finished the drive with a five-yard pitch. This put the team up 34-20 with under two minutes left to play. The snap on the extra point attempt was not caught so the team didn't convert.

With little time left, the Presidents looked to the air to get points. It worked. Boretti picked up three first downs on passes: two to Rodrigues and one to Ham. He then connected with Will Ploof on a 16-yard touchdown pass on a wheel route.

Keenan: Support For Sports Betting Growing In State Senate

By SCOTT JACKSON

While the state Senate has yet to act on legislation to legalize sports betting in the Bay State, Sen. John Keenan said there is a growing sense of support for the measure in the chamber.

More than two dozen states have legalized sports betting since 2018, when the Supreme Court struck down a law that prohibited sports betting in all but a handful of states. Connecticut, New Hampshire, New York and Rhode Island are among the states where gambling on sports is now legal.

In July, the Massachusetts House of Representatives on July 22 voted 156-3 in favor of a bill that would legalize sports betting in the state; all four members who represent Quincy voted to pass it. The House bill would allow adults 21 and older to bet on sports at casinos and racetracks and online. Betting on high school and youth sports would be prohibited, along with betting on the performance of individual college athletes and on injuries, penalties and discipline.

The bill is currently pending in the state Senate. Senate President Karen Spilka, an Ashland Democrat, in late September said the bill was not one of her priorities for the coming months.

"The House has passed it twice and we have not taken action on it," Keenan, a Quincy Democrat, said in a recent interview when asked about the sports betting bill.

"The Senate president was asked a short while ago whether she considered it a priority, and she said the priorities over the next few months will be allocating the federal funds from ARPA; balancing out our FY 2021 budget, closing it; allocating the surpluses from the last fiscal year; and then perhaps mental and behavioral health legislation. She didn't list it as a priority."

"There are some members of the Senate who would like to see the Senate take up that bill, so it is kind of in discussion," Keenan added, explaining that legislative priorities are identified by both the leadership and members of the chamber.

"I think there is a growing sense of support for the legislation in the Senate, more than there has been in the past," he said.

The current session on Beacon Hill expires at the end of 2022, with formal sessions closing at the end of next July.

"There is time for the bill to be taken up in the spring and into the summer," Keenan said.

The senator said he would likely vote in favor of legalizing sports betting, though that depends on how the legislation is written.

"I would vote in favor of it depending on whether a couple of my concerns were addressed," he said. "One would be that there be no advertising targeted at young people. That is a concern that I have. I'm not sure that that has been

AAA: Time To Make Sure Your Battery Is Ready For Winter

AAA Northeast replaces thousands of batteries per month and that number climbs as the weather gets colder. The average life of a battery in the northeast is just under five years old. Even though the winter is when most batteries fail it is the summer heat that causes damage to a battery.

"The higher the temperatures inside a battery the quicker it degrades. Checking your vehicle battery periodically is the best way to prevent battery failure and being stranded. Once your vehicle's battery is three years old it should be checked on an annual basis," said John Paul, AAA Northeast Senior Manager of Traffic Safety and the AAA Car Doctor. "As important as checking the battery condition is inspecting the battery cables and connections for corrosion. If there are any signs of corrosion, remove the cables and clean the connections. AAA can provide mobile battery testing and replacement or drive to your local repair shop for testing. Checking your vehicle's battery before winter should be as routine and checking the engine coolant."

If batteries suffer damage during the hot weather, why do they fail in the cold weather? According to AAA research, when the temperatures drop to 32 degrees your vehicle battery loses 35 percent of its capacity. When the temperatures get even colder, your engine requires up to 50 percent more energy to crank over and start all while the battery has even lost more of its strength.

So, what can a motorist do? Starting a car and letting it idle in cold weather does very little to keep the battery charged. In fact, many vehicles today only recharge their batteries when the car is under way. If you don't drive often, start your car and go for a 30-minute drive to help keep the battery charged and prevent other systems from rusting from lack of use.

Remember, if your car started with a jumpstart, you didn't fix the problem, only the symptom of it not starting, says AAA. Have the battery, starting and charging system tested. This entire process can be completed in just a few minutes and help prevent a breakdown in the future.

Boretti then completed the two-point conversion to a wide-open Rodrigues. This made it a 34-28 game with 44.8 seconds left.

The Presidents then went for the onside kick, but it touched one of their players before it went 10 yards. Silver Lake then knelt down the ball to end the game.

In other football news, North Quincy defeated Framingham on the road last Friday night. Final score was North Quincy 22, Framingham 14.

The Raiders will host Bridgewater-Raynham Friday night at 7 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Quincy will travel to Whitman-Hanson Friday night. Kick off is at 6 p.m.

The Friday night games are the last for Quincy and North Quincy until the teams renew their rivalry on Thanksgiving morning Thursday, Nov. 25 at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Kick off is at 10 a.m.

Red Cross Blood Drives Here Nov. 17, Nov. 29

The American Red Cross will hold two blood drives in Quincy this month.

The first drive will be held Wednesday, Nov. 17 from 2 to 7 p.m. at the Quincy Yacht Club, 1310 Sea St.

The second is set for Monday, Nov. 29 from 1 to 7 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St.

Each Red Cross blood drive and donation center follows the highest standards of safety and infection control, and additional precautions – including face masks for donors and staff, regardless of vaccination status – have been implemented to help protect the health of all those in attendance. Donors are asked to schedule an appointment prior to arriving at the drive.

There is no blood donation waiting period for those who have received a flu shot or a Moderna, Pfizer or Johnson & Johnson COVID-19 vaccine or booster, so long as they are symptom-free. Donors are urged to schedule an appointment now by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

As the holidays approach and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention warns about a potential spike in flu cases this year, it's important that those who are eligible, healthy and feeling well make an appointment to donate blood or platelets. The American Red Cross continues to address an ongoing emergency blood shortage, and donors are urged to give now to combat the lowest blood supply levels at this time of year in more than a decade.

According to the CDC, flu cases reached an all-time low last year due to masking, physical distancing and shutdowns across the country, and many Americans may have reduced immunity this year. When seasonal illness increases, the number of healthy blood donors tends to decrease. Paired with winter weather, busy holiday schedules and ongoing COVID-19 concerns, the already-struggling blood supply could be further impacted throughout winter.

To encourage donors to help meet the needs of hospital patients this month, all who come to donate Nov. 1-23 will receive a $10 Amazon.com Gift Card by email. Those who come to give around the Thanksgiving holiday, Nov. 24-28, will receive a pair of Red Cross socks, while supplies last.

Keenan: Support For Sports Betting Growing In State Senate

adequately addressed in the House bill. And then also I have a concern about being able to fund your gambling account with a credit card. For people who have problems with gambling, that is a recipe for disaster.

"Those are my two major concerns, so my support would depend on whether those are addressed, and then also what else may be in the Senate bill."

Keenan noted that most states around Massachusetts have already legalized sports betting.

"Other states have now adopted it around us," he said. "The states are starting to do it and so one of the arguments in support of it is if there is going to be that type of activity in surrounding states, are we just losing out on the revenue? It's being allowed, so why wouldn't we allow it and get our share of the revenue that is going to other states?

"It was a similar argument back with the casinos – I think it was $900 million a year going to Connecticut from Massachusetts, so one of the arguments in support of casino gambling was to keep that money local."

During the interview, Keenan was asked if he was disappointed that the legislation has yet to come to a vote. Keenan responded that he was "somewhat ambivalent on it."

"It is not a priority of mine, but if my concerns are addressed, and depending on the final language of the bill I could support it so if it came forward I would be fine with that," Keenan said. "If there is a sense it should come forward, then I would support it coming forward. I think if there is a desire among the members to have an issue come up, then it should come up.

"But in terms of my priorities, it's not a priority of mine."

Adams National Historical Park Accepting Applications For Seasonal Park Guide, Park Rangers

Adams National Historical Park announces that applications for employment for Seasonal Park Guide and Park Ranger (Interpretation) are being accepted on USAJobs.gov now through Sunday, Nov. 14.

Full-time seasonal employment (40 hours per week including weekends and holidays) at Adams National Historical Park will be available from May 2022 until October 2022. Applications must be submitted online for consideration for the GS-0090-04/05 Park Guide and GS-0025-05/07 Park Ranger (Interpretation). Please see USAJobs.gov for salary and other information.

If the applicant limit is reached before the end date, then the job posting will close before Nov. 14. To qualify, applicants must be 18 years of age or older and a U. S. Citizen.

Park Rangers and Park Guides conduct tours of historic structures across two properties, including the Presidential Birthplaces of John and John Quincy Adams and the "Old House" at Peace field (home to four generations of the Adams family). They provide current, accurate information to visitors during interpretive tours and talks relating to the historical themes at Adams NHP. These themes at Adams NHP include, but are not limited to the American Revolution, the American Presidency, and the role of the Adams family in the founding and development of the United States of America from the American Revolution to the Gilded Age. Park Rangers and Park Guides identify and utilize primary and secondary source materials to develop interpretive tours and talks for diverse audiences. They always provide the highest level of customer service in a variety of busy and challenging environments, including (a visitor center of contact station), inside historic buildings that are not climate controlled and outdoors on the cultural landscape. All positions will also assist with special projects, including but limited to developing special interest tours and educational materials, assisting with social media, and conducting school programs. Higher level positions will have more responsibilities.

As a part of the Federal workforce, the National Park Service and Adams National Historical Park promote diversity, equity, inclusion, and accessibility. The Federal hiring process is set up to be fair and transparent for all candidates. See guidance on USAJobs.gov for more information.

Gift Ideas For Bird Watchers, Gardeners

By MELINDA MYERS

Give a gift that provides beauty, entertainment, and health benefits throughout the year. With the recent increase in people gardening and bird watching, what could be more perfect than a gift that supports both interests?

Birds visiting feeders, munching on the coneflower seeds in the garden and perching in the shelter of evergreens help brighten the long, often dreary days of winter. Just like gardening, bird watching helps us connect with nature, reduces stress, and elevates our mood. Plus, the gardeners on your list will appreciate the help birds provide managing insect pests. Protein-rich insects and spiders are an essential part of the diet of 96 percent of North American terrestrial birds.

Growing a landscape filled with plants that provide seeds, berries and shelter is a great way to attract these welcome guests to our gardens. Providing additional sources of food, water and shelter can increase the number and diversity of the winged visitors.

Help your gift recipient create a bird feeding station so they can easily watch the birds and enjoy their songs. Include a variety of feeders suited to the birds they want to attract. Select feeders that are easy to fill and clean and protect seed from weather and squirrels.

You'll attract a wide range of birds with tray and platform feeders. Look for ones like the Gardener's Supply Twigs Platform Bird Feeder which has a cover to protect the seed from rain and snow and a removable mesh floor for easy cleaning. Platform feeders like this, with excellent drainage, help minimize the risk of wet seed sprouting or supporting bacteria and fungi that can harm the birds. Help keep seeds safe and fresh with regular cleaning and by only providing enough seed for a day or two.

Hopper or house feeders protect seed against the weather and bird droppings. But if the seed gets wet, the closed environment is perfect for bacteria and fungi to thrive. Plus, they are more difficult to clean.

Tube feeders are cylinders with perches and feeding ports. Those with perches above the openings attract birds like goldfinches and chickadees that can feed upside down. Those with small perches discourage large birds from feeding. Select tube feeders with small ports for smaller seeds like Nyjer thistle and ones with larger openings for large seeds.

Look for ones with wire surrounds to keep out squirrels and those that are easy to clean like the Gardener's Supply Cleaver Clean Tube Feeder with a removable bottom. Reduce problems on other tube feeders by blocking the bottom of the tube that extends below the lowest feeding port. Seed and water can collect there, increasing the risk of fungi and bacteria.

Clean feeders regularly with a 10% non-chlorine bleach solution, commercial birdfeeder cleaner or mild solution of unscented dishwashing soap. Wash the inside and outside of the feeder, perches and feeding ports. Once cleaned, rinse with clear water and dry before refilling.

Provide some shelter from wind, snow, rain, and predators for birds spending the winter in your landscape. Supplement what trees and shrubs provide by including a few roosting boxes and pockets. Gardener's Supply fair trade roosting pockets (gardeners.com) are attractive, easy to hang, provide some needed insulation and are easy for birds to enter and exit.

Make sure to provide water throughout the year. Those in colder climates will need to add a heater, bubbler, or aerator to prevent the water from freezing. Providing fresh water reduces the calories and body heat a bird uses when melting snow and ice.

ROOSTING POCKETS provide some needed insulation for birds and are easy for them to enter and exit.

Select a birdbath that can be left outside year-round to avoid cracks and leaks as water freezes and place it in a sunny area. Add a few stones so the birds can take a sip without getting totally wet. Keep these clean just as you do during warmer months.

Looking for more ideas? Help your favorite birder prepare for the nesting season with a gift of one or more birdhouses. These make attractive additions to any landscape while providing more homes for visiting songbirds.

When selecting the right gift for your favorite bird watcher or gardener consider creating or expanding your own bird-friendly landscape. A small investment in creating a bird habitat reaps wonderful benefits all year round.

Memories Of Frank McCauley

ing.

Unassumingly, the mayor stepped forward from his seat and clutched a corner of the blue velvet covering the plaque as Mundy took the other side. Nonchalantly, Mundy and McCauley then removed the covering and revealed its inscription. McCauley stood stunned as Mundy read the first three words: "The McCauley Building."

The crowd showered the mayor with applause as Mundy read the rest of the inscription that read in part: "in honor of Francis X. McCauley . . . an outstanding public servant whose tenure was marked by an exemplary commitment to the hospital and the people of the communities it serves."

After the applause quieted down, McCauley replied: "Thank you so much. I'm a little embarrassed by (the honor). This was a great project, a lot of work by a lot of people and my involvement was probably less than many but I really appreciate this, Mark, and all those who worked so hard to make this day come true."

The last time I saw Frank was April 2019 at a Quincy Lions Club luncheon at the Neighborhood Club. He was joined by his daughter, Jennifer, and shared stories from his new autobiography: Frank: From Bootlegger to Banker and Beyond that recounted his improbable rise from clam digger to mayor.

At the end of the luncheon, Frank, Jennifer and the Lions gathered for some photos that I took for The Sun.

Before saying goodbye, I asked Frank if the Frank McCauley story ever made it to the big screen, whom would he like to play the lead.

Frank's eyes got big, a wide smile appeared and then he said "Magnum, P.I. Tom Selleck."

Another big laugh courtesy of Frank McCauley.

I bet I wouldn't be the only person in line waiting to see that film.

Frank McCauley was much more than a fiscal conservative, penny-pinching, "save it for a rainy day because it always rains" dedicated public servant.

At his very core Frank had a heart of gold. He loved his family, his Houghs Neck neighborhood and the entire city. He was a strong leader who served this city with distinction. Quincy is a better place today because of Frank McCauley.

Thanks for the memories, Frank.

Your many fans are gonna miss you.

Holiday Expo At NQHS

The ninth annual Holiday Shopping Expo will be held Saturday, Nov. 13 at North Quincy High School.

The event hosts more than 120 local and regional crafters and vendors and features fun activities for the entire family. Santa Claus will visit the Holiday Candyland and includes one free professional photo by Ella Farrell Photography between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. or bring your camera.

The event includes 15 high value raffle baskets filled with many goods and services from local Quincy area businesses. There will be cookie decorating with Ginger Betty's, hot cocoa from Coffee Break Cafe and three food trucks to enjoy throughout the day.

Event organizers are the Montclair PTO and North Quincy High School PAC.

Admission is $5 (children under 12 are free) and benefits the students of Montclair Elementary School and North Quincy High School by supporting a variety of enrichment programs throughout the school year.

Quincy Should List Candidates On Ballot Randomly

Do you know what makes Massachusetts unique among the 50 states?

Is it that we call ourselves the Commonwealth? No, three other states do that. Legalized cannabis? No, places like Colorado and Maine have done it too, and arguably better. Well then, it must be the taxes we pay here – we are Taxachusetts after all. Nope, we're somewhere in the middle taxwise, with lower average taxes than places like Minnesota and Wisconsin.

No, what really sets us apart is we are the only state where incumbents are listed first on the ballot in elections.

Let that sink in. Of the 50 states in this country, only our precious Commonwealth lists incumbents first. To avoid the "primary effect" – the boost a candidate gets simply by being placed first in order – most states determine ballot placement by lottery. Some even vary the order by precinct to truly eliminate the effect.

Massachusetts, of course, doesn't. We still put the incumbents first in state-wide elections, to the advantage of those incumbents. Cities and towns may choose differently – Boston uses a lottery for its elections – but I'd venture to say many don't.

The impact of this can be seen here in Quincy. Over the last decade, just three incumbents running in city elections have lost – Emily Lebo, Mike McFarland, and most recently Courtney Perdios (who had been appointed to the seat just months prior).

Further, in every competitive councilor at large race since 2005 (the oldest election with results available on the city website) the candidate listed first – Joe Finn and later Noel DiBona – has always finished with the highest vote total.

The same holds true for the 2005, 2007, 2009 and 2011 school committee elections. In the elections after that, candidates listed lower on the ballot have gotten the most votes, but still the person listed on the ballot has managed to win one of the seats available. In 2017, Anthony Andronico, then an unknown, was first on the ballot and beat out three others. And this year Doug Gutro was first on the ballot and eked out a win despite having placed fifth in the preliminary election less than two months before.

Speaking of which, why is the order for the preliminary drawn randomly if the order for the final election is not? (This isn't a trick question. I would love to hear why this is the case.)

It is high time for Quincy to consider to follow in the footsteps of our neighbors to the north and list candidates randomly. No more bonus votes for incumbents by virtue of being first on the ballot.

But why would incumbents do this and risk losing their seat and the pay and benefits that come with it – not to mention the sinecure jobs they can get on the Norfolk County payroll if they play nice?

Well, maybe they'll think about Joe and Jane Q. Public, who deserve the best representation they can get.

Thank you for your consideration,

Alexandra Kaczor

Did you know that someone's identity gets stolen every two seconds?

The AARP Fraud Watch Network provides you with tips and resources to help you spot and avoid identity theft and fraud so you can protect yourself and your family. Our watchdog alerts will keep you up to date on con artists' latest tricks. It's free of charge for everyone: AARP members, non-members, and people of all ages.

The AARP Fraud Watch Network is:

• An Educator: Get real-time alerts about the latest scams, tips on how to spot them, and the inside scoop on how con artists think so you can outsmart them before they strike.

• A Watchdog: Our nationwide scam tracking map gives you access to a network of people who've spotted scams and the opportunity to pass along your own experiences, so together we can beat con artists at their own game.

• A Resource: Get connected to a real live person trained in how to avoid fraud and advise you if you or a loved one has been scammed by calling our fraud hotline or attending a forum in your community.

• Free for Everyone: Anyone, of any age, can access our resources at no cost.

SCAM ALERT #1:
Investment Scams

We've all received the pitch — that one investment opportunity that sounds just too good to pass up. But 99.99% of the time, passing it up is exactly the right thing to do. Investment fraud siphons billions of dollars from investors every year. Here's how to spot a phony investment opportunity coming your way.

Avoid any investment where you have to "act now." If the scammer can convince you to engage before you take the time to do any research or think more critically about the offer, they get your "investment" money. Also be wary of investment pitches that uses phrases such as "incredible gains" or "breakout stock pick." According to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission these phrases suggest high risk and possible fraud.

SCAM ALERT #2:
Online Shopping Scams

Thanks in part to worldwide supply chain delays the holiday shopping season has started earlier than ever, with shoppers trying to scoop up top gift items before they disappear. That means the online shopping scam season has officially begun.

Here are the two simple steps you can take to stay a step ahead of the grinch this holiday shopping season.

Type, but don't click. The safest place to shop online is with retailers you trust and by typing their url into your web browser is much safer than clicking on a link you find in an email or web search. Also, avoid deals that you know are too good to be true, even if the offer comes from a friend. Scammers are experts at hacking social media accounts and one of the first things they do is send out fake offers to victim's friends and family.

SCAM ALERT #3:
Veterans Scams

Their time in service to protect our country is over. Now it's our turn to protect our veterans from scams. Veterans deserve our gratefulness, our respect and praise. Here's what they don't deserve: attempts to take advantage of their service. Yet every day, scammers attempt to defraud our veterans of their hard-earned benefits, steal their identity, or take their savings.

These frauds include seeking donations for fake charities claiming to serve our nation's veterans (always research before giving); targeting veterans with fake employment opportunities (it's a scam if you have to pay to get the job or provide sensitive personal information); and offers of free cash from little-known government grant programs (the federal government doesn't hand out grants to individuals).

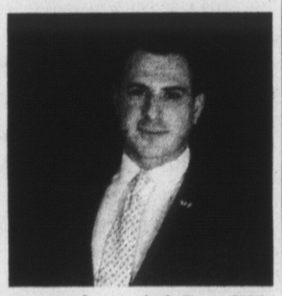

SCAM ALERT #4:
Watchdog Alert Signups

Staying a step ahead of the scammers is like playing a never ending game of whack-a-mole. We know that people who know about a scam are 80% less likely to even engage in it but how can you stay up to speed? One great tool is the AARP Fraud Watch Network's Watchdog Alert.

The Watchdog Alert is a scam update that comes twice a month to your email or phone. It lets you know about the latest scams trending across the country, how you can spot them, and how you can avoid falling victim. The Watchdog Alert will help you understand what the red flags to look out for and what to do if you think you've been victimized. It's also easy to share with friends and family, and it's completely free.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

Report scams to local law enforcement. For help from AARP, call 1-877-908-3360 or visit the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork.

THE MIRACLE PRAYER
Dear Heart of Jesus, in the past, I have asked for many favors.
This time, I ask you this very special favor (mention favor). Take it dear Heart of Jesus, and place it within your own broken heart where your father sees it. Then in his merciful eyes it will become your favor, not mine.
Amen.
Say this prayer for 3 days, promise publication and favor will be granted, no matter how impossible. Never known to fail. E.K. 11/18

OBITUARIES

Judith A. Tanner, 81

Judith A. (Burke) Tanner, age 81, of Kingston, died peacefully Nov. 3 in the comfort of her home, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Quincy, to the late Warren P. and Dorothy L. (Cronin) Burke. Raised in Quincy and Weymouth, she was a graduate of Weymouth High School, Class of 1957.

Mrs. Tanner had lived in Kingston for the past eighteen years, previously in Plymouth for six years, and earlier in Hingham for twenty-one years.

As a young woman in the late 1950s, she began her career working at the front desk at The Statler Hotel in Boston. After marrying, she left the work force to start a family. She and her husband, Michael, lived abroad as he completed his service in the U.S. Navy. After raising her children, she returned to work as a secretary at the Tern Harbor Marina in Weymouth and the former Superior Pet Products, Inc. in Quincy. Mrs. Tanner also worked alongside her husband at the company he owned, the former Pest Management Systems, Inc. in Hingham. She had been retired for many years.

Mrs. Tanner enjoyed playing Mahjong at the Duxbury Senior Center. She had an affinity for Scottish Terriers and loved caring for and spending time with the three of them. Most of all, she was devoted to her family.

Beloved wife of the late Michael A. Tanner. Devoted mother of Stephen M. Tanner and his wife Sophia of Virginia, Stacey L. Tanner-Sullivan and her husband Kevin of Marshfield. Loving grandmother of John, Matthew, and Helena Tanner, Kyle and Joseph Sullivan. She was predeceased by her siblings, Barbara M. Marr and John M. Burke. Mrs. Tanner is also survived by her longtime caregiver and dear friend, Brenda Ward.

At the request of the family, memorial services will be conducted at a later date.

Memorial donations may be made to the Hospice of the South Shore, 30 Reservoir Park Drive, Rockland, MA 02370.

Arrangements were under the direction of the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave, Quincy.

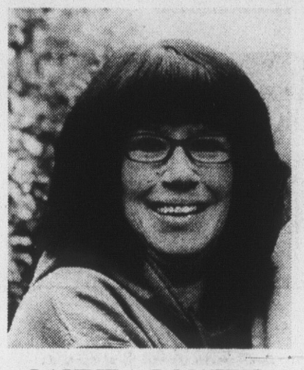

Laurie A. DiMattio, 56

A funeral Mass for Laurie Ann (Maule) DiMattio, 56, will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. in St. John the Baptist Parish, Quincy.

Mrs. DiMattio died peacefully Nov. 2 at her home, surrounded by loved ones. She fought courageously for several months before losing her battle with cancer.

Born in Quincy to the late John and Joan Maule (Morton) of Weymouth. She graduated from North Quincy High School and attended Northeastern University. Mrs. DiMattio was employed at Black Rock Country Club as a bar manager for 18 years, a job that she was dedicated to and loved.

She enjoyed gardening fresh vegetables, planting seasonal flowers, spending time with family as well as cracking jokes with everyone in her presence. Mrs. DiMattio especially loved playing with her dogs, Simba and Nala. If Judge Judy or Jaws was not on television, then it was the Food Network.

Mrs. DiMattio is survived by her loving husband of 36 years, William Francis DiMattio of Quincy. She is also survived by her daughters Kristen Ann DiMattio of Avon, and Elizabeth Grace DiMattio of Quincy; and her sisters: Bonnie Jenkins of Ohio, Cheryl Netter of Ohio, and Gayle Mascarello of Massachusetts. She is especially loved by her in-laws Ann and the late William DiMattio of Quincy as well as uncle William Morton of South Carolina, brothers-in-law Kevin and his wife Rose DiMattio of Whitman and Mark DiMattio of Quincy. She is further survived by many nieces, nephews, and cousins.

Visiting hours are 4 to 8 p.m. Thursday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

A celebration of life service will be held in the funeral home at 9 a.m. on Friday.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Herren Project. P.O. Box 131, Portsmouth, RI 02871 or by visiting herrenproject.org/donate.

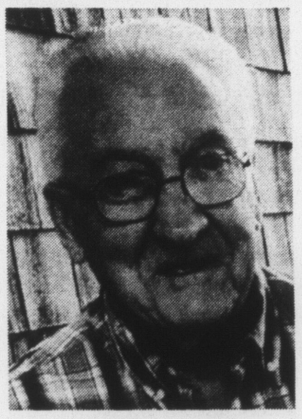

David R. Larkin, 83

A funeral Mass for David R. Larkin, age 83, formerly of Brockton, Braintree, and Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Larkin died peacefully Nov. 3 at Blue Hills Health and Rehabilitation Center in Stoughton, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born in Weymouth, to the late Richard E. and Maryrose (Riordan) Larkin. Mr. Larkin was raised in Braintree and was a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Class of 1957, where he played football, hockey and baseball. He had lived in Brockton for fifteen years, previously in Braintree and Quincy for most of his life.

Mr. Larkin was employed as an independent contractor for the HP Hood

DAVID R. LARKIN

Milk Company for twenty years and later worked as an assembly supervisor at the 3M plant in Cambridge for eight years.

He served as an airman 1/c in the United States Air Force during the Vietnam era.

Mr. Larkin was an avid gardener, cultivating both vegetables and flowers, and also enjoyed fishing and golfing.

Most of all, Mr. Larkin was devoted to his family and was especially proud of his grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Beloved husband of the late Doris L. (Carlson) Larkin. Devoted father of David R. Larkin, Jr. and his life partner Denise Groen of Milford, Donna M. McKenna and her husband Douglas of Berkley, and Debra A. Tripp and her husband Keith of South Carolina. Loving grandfather of Michael Driscoll, Matthew Driscoll and his wife Samantha, Candice, Michael and Dylan McKenna. Cherished great-grandfather of Colton, Caileb, Aurora, Alice, Mia, Declan, Bella and Caden.

Mr. Larkin was one of seven siblings and was the dear brother of Grace Abourjaily of FL, Rosemary Szafran of Pembroke and her late husband John, Ann Batal and her husband Joe of FL, John Larkin and his wife Donna of Quincy, Louise Crespi and her husband Bob of Weymouth, and the late Paul Larkin and his surviving spouse Carol. He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment, with military honors, at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to the Wounded Warrior Project, P.O. Box 758517, Topeka, Kansas 66675-8517.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Dr. Newton J. Cochran

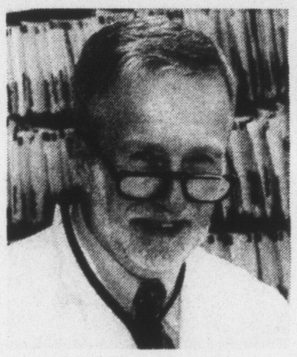

A funeral Mass for Newton J. Cochran, MD, FACP, of Pembroke and Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Dr. Cochran died Oct. 29.

He adored his family, his faith, and his work. Dr. Cochran was a physician for over 50 years, most of them at the family practice he opened in his childhood neighborhood in Quincy, Wollaston Medical Associates.

He was devoted to his patients, never turning anyone away and making daily house calls. As a devout Catholic he enjoyed travels to religious sites all over the world, including Rome, Medjugorje, and Our Lady of Fátima. Dr. Cochran was also a proud United States Army veteran.

After retirement he filled his days with family gatherings, furniture restoration, gardening, and carpentry.

NEWTON J. COCHRAN

He also enjoyed traveling to Florida. Dr. Cochran will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Loving husband of the late Brenda Finn-Cochran. Cherished father of Manette Donovan and her husband Frank of Milton, Rachel Cantela of Milton, Newton J. Cochran, III of Plymouth, Noelle Spear and her husband Thomas of Quincy, children from his marriage to Margaret Cochran, and Meredith Craig and her husband Ryan of Quincy, Shannon Traft and her husband Billy of Dorchester. Devoted Grampy of Jake Spear, Chloe Donovan, Matthew Craig, Lily Spear, Liam Donovan, Katelyn Craig, Brady Craig, Grace Spear, Maddalena Cantela, and Paxton Traft. Loving brother of the late Barbara Shea and James Cochran. Also survived by many nieces and nephews, grand nieces and nephews, and dear friends.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to Wounded Warrior Project, P.O. Box 758517, Topeka, KS 66675 or the Carmelites of Boston, 61 Mount Pleasant Ave, Boston, MA 02119.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Patricia M. O'Brien, 75

A funeral service for Patricia M. (Morris) O'Brien, 75, of Quincy, formerly of West Palm Beach, Fla., was held Sunday in East Congregational Church, UCC, Milton.

Mrs. O'Brien died Oct. 30.

She was born in Boston to James and Vera Morris (Stankewich). Mrs. O'Brien graduated from South Boston High School and went to UMass Boston on full scholarship awarded to her for her dedication to tenant advocacy. She spent most of her life in Quincy but moved to West Palm Beach, FL, where she had a long, distinguished career in the field of HIV care and prevention. After two decades in Florida, Patricia returned home to help take care of her ex-husband and best friend, John O'Brien.

Mrs. O'Brien was a relentless caregiver to those she loved and at times to strangers in need. Her hand was always the first to reach out and help if she could. There was never a question, or judgment. A passionate activist, she halted the demolition of the beloved Germantown Neighborhood Center and took up causes that supported tenants' rights in the public sector. In her spare time, she could be found spending time with family, sketching, playing the guitar, learning Spanish, or planning to attend a protest to help the poor and suffering.

Devoted mother of Linda O'Brien-Lindsay of Quincy and cherished grandmother of Michael Lindsay of Quincy. She is also survived by her loving Aunt Margie, and many loving relatives and friends.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

NOV 10 2021

Marilyn L. Ridge

A funeral Mass for Marilyn L. (Greene) Ridge of Quincy will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Ridge died peacefully Nov. 2 surrounded by her family.

Beloved wife of the late John J. Ridge. Loving mother of Maureen Connolly and her husband Patrick of Scituate, formerly of Duxbury, John J. Ridge, Jr. and his wife Shelly of Cincinnati, Geraldine Glynn of NY, Christine Riley and her husband Kirk of Weymouth. Cherished sister of the late Virginia Daly. "Nana" to Keryn, Timothy, and Christian Connolly, Shannon, Casey, Erin, and Allison Ridge, Leanne Glynn, Patrick, Shannon and John Riley.

Mrs. Ridge's life revolved around her deep faith, her family and many friends. She grew up in South Boston where she met her husband of over 40 years John Ridge. Mrs. Ridge was especially proud of graduating from Gate of Heaven and stayed in touch with many classmates and planned many reunions.

Mrs. Ridge lived in Quincy, the city she loved, for over 50 years. She raised her family there and was an active parishioner at Sacred Heart Church and School. She faithfully attended the 9:00 daily mass until her health prevented it. Mrs. Ridge was a prefect and board member of Ladies Sodality for many years as well as a member of North Quincy Catholic Women's Club, a Eucharistic minister and a CCD teacher. She also loved her job at Walsh's Restaurant that she had for over 25 years.

Mrs. Ridge was truly devoted to her grandchildren. She kept up with everything going on in their lives and will be greatly missed by all of them.

For the past 3 1/2 years, Mrs. Ridge lived at the Allerton House in Hingham and the family would like to thank everyone there for the excellent care and love she received. Mrs. Ridge loved all of the caregivers and staff and they all loved her.

Penuel Cohen, 80

A service of thanksgiving and tribute for Penuel "Penny" (Sullivan) Cohen, 80, of Scituate, formerly of Winthrop and Quincy, was held Nov. 6 in the First Trinitarian Congregational Church, Scituate.

Mrs. Cohen died Oct. 31 following a courageous battle with Alzheimer's disease.

She was the daughter of the late Russell E and Penuel E. (Gordon) Sullivan.

Raised in Quincy, Mrs. Cohen graduated from Woodward School for Girls and worked for the former New England Telephone and Telegraph Co. It was during this time that she met and married the love of her life, Eugene G. Cohen, with whom she was celebrating their 60th year of matrimony together; having been married April 13, 1962. The couple soon-after moved to Winthrop, where they made their home and raised a family until 2004, when they moved to Scituate.

Mrs. Cohen was a voracious reader who also loved to cook and to travel. Her charming, quick-witted sense of humor was disarming, and endeared her to all who knew her.

PENUEL COHEN

She was an active member of the Trinitarian Congregational Church of Scituate, where she volunteered – as a senior citizen herself – to cook for the senior citizen group which meets there. She is a former member of Bethany Church, Quincy.

Beloved bride of Eugene G. Cohen. Loving mother of Jeffrey S. Cohen of Winthrop, Jennifer A. Casey and her husband John of Scituate, and David B. Cohen and his wife Linda (McDonald) of Winthrop. Dear Sister to General Gordon R. Sullivan, US Army (ret.) and his wife Lori (Boyle) of Falmouth, MA and Palm Springs, CA and sister-in-law of the late Miriam Gay (Loftus) Sullivan. Cherished grandmother of Emma, Jake and Grace Casey, and Olivia and Maxwell Cohen. Also survived by Greggrey G. Cohen of Swampscott, several nephews, and one niece.

A private burial is planned in her family plot at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Norwell VNA and Hospice, 120 Longwater Dr., Norwell MA 02061 or to Southwood at Norwell Resident Activities Fund, 501 Cordwainer Dr., Norwell MA 02061.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Dear Veterans and Your Families,

You have our unending gratitude.

Respectfully,
All of Us at

She had lived in Norwell for several years and previously in Quincy for over fifty years, where she raised her six children.

Mrs. Prescott was employed with the Quincy Public Schools and managed the Quincy High School cafeteria for many years. She was active in the Quincy Teen Mother Program at the Bethany Congregational Church, which allowed teen mothers to get a high school diploma outside of school.

Mrs. Prescott was also a devoted mother and homemaker and was especially proud of her many grandchildren and great grandchildren. She attended many school sports and social events for her family and was always an encouraging and supportive spirit.

GERTRUDE H. PRESCOTT

Beloved wife of the late John C. Prescott, Esq. Devoted mother of John C. Prescott, Jr., Esq. and his wife Heidi of Duxbury, LTC Glen T. Prescott, U.S. Army (Ret.) and his wife Sylvia of Destin, Fla., The Honorable Beverly J. Cannone and her husband Frank, Dean L. Prescott and his wife Colleen, and Sharon Healy Mahoney and her husband Sean, all of Norwell, and the late Lori Prescott Carta. She was the loving grandmother of seventeen and great-grandmother of nine.

Visiting hours were 4 to 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

The family requests that those attending Mrs. Prescott's services be vaccinated and wear face coverings.

Memorial donations may be made to Father Bill's & MainSpring (Father Bill's Place), 430 Belmont St., Brockton, MA 02301.

Margaret T. Binns, 86

A funeral Mass for Margaret T. "Peiga" (Walsh) Binns, age 86, of Quincy, will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. in Holy Trinity Parish at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Binns died peacefully Nov. 3 in the comfort of her home, surrounded by her loving family and friends.

She was born in Carna, County Galway, Ireland, to the late Andrew and Annie (Ridge) Walsh. Mrs. Binns was raised and educated there. As a young woman, she lived briefly in England before immigrating to the United States in the early 1960s, settling in the Mission Hill, Jamaica Plain area. She had lived in Quincy for the past fifty-seven years.

Mrs. Binns was employed as a nurse's aide and began her career at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston. She later specialized in private duty care at nursing facilities and private homes.

Mrs. Binns was an incredibly talented knitter and was well-known for her Irish sweaters and blankets. She was also famous for her love of animals and never turned away a stray dog or cat.

Most of all, Mrs. Binns was devoted to her family and friends, and especially to her children.

MARGARET T. BINNS

Beloved wife of the late Edward T. Binns. Devoted mother of Barbara V. Bognanno and her husband Robert of Quincy, Maria Resseler and her husband Walter Serluppens of Belgium, and the late Edward M. Binns.

Mrs. Binns was one of ten siblings and was the sister of Barbara Mullen of Spiddal, County Galway, Ireland. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Visiting hours are 4 to 7 p.m. Thursday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Quincy Animal Shelter, P.O. Box 690088, Quincy, MA 02269 or to Father Bill's & MainSpring, 430 Belmont St., Brockton, MA 02301.

Mary V. Fantucchio, 95

A funeral Mass for Mary V. (Vocino) Fantucchio, 95, of Hingham, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday at Divine Mercy Parish in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Fantucchio died peacefully at her home on Nov. 2.

Born in Boston on Sept. 30, 1926, she was the daughter of the late Luigi and Susan (DeCata) Vocino. She attended local schools and graduated from Somerville High School with the Class of 1944. Mrs. Fantucchio worked as a clerk with Quincy District Court for many years until her retirement. She enjoyed her career and the relationships she built throughout the years.

Mrs. Fantucchio was the beloved wife of the late Raymond P. Fantucchio, who died in 2007. She was the devoted mother of Ronald Fantucchio of Braintree, Paul Fantucchio and his wife Deborah of Charlemont, Susan Moore and her husband Michael of loving nieces and nephews.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

NOV 10 2021

OBITUARIES

Scott W. Verrier, 55

Scott W. Verrier, age 55, of Hull, died peacefully, Oct. 30, at his home.

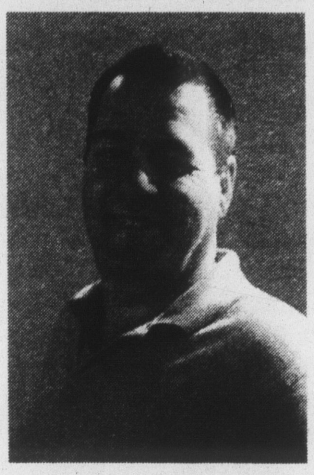

Scott was born, raised and educated in Quincy. He lived in Hull for five years, previously in Brockton, but most of his life in Quincy.

He was a construction worker in property management for many years. He enjoyed the ocean, fishing and swimming. Scott was also an avid New England Patriots fan.

Beloved father of Scott W. Verrier, Jr. and Isabel S. Verrier.

Loving grandfather of Emily, Scott, Jaylin, Layla and Genevieve.

Loving companion of Maureen Meade of Hull.

SCOTT W. VERRIER

Devoted son of the late John J. Verrier and Isabel (Moneghan) Verrier, stepson of the late Ruth A. (Westland) Verrier.

Dear brother of Denice C. (Harney) Robichaud of Carver, John Verrier of Wareham, and Donna Duddy of R.I., and predeceased by Raymond Verrier, David Verrier, Mark Verrier, and Richard Verrier.

Scott is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

At the request of the family, funeral services were private.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Quincy Animal Shelter, P.O. Box 690088, Quincy, MA 02269-0088.

Kevin J. Hannon

Kevin J. Hannon, of Quincy, died suddenly on Nov. 1, surrounded by his loving family.

Beloved husband of Brenda M. (Madden) Hannon of Quincy (Tipperary). Loving father of Emily and her fiancé Samuel Butler, Sean Patrick, Matthew, and Caroline Hannon, all of Quincy. Cherished brother of Pauline O'Malley of Loughrea (Galway), Marie Summerville of Oranmore (Galway), Frank of Clontuskert (Galway), Thomas of Aughrim (Galway), Tony of Dunshaughlin (Meath), Eithne Smyth of Malahide (Dublin), and the late Sean Hannon of Perth (Western Australia). Also survived by many nieces, nephews, cousins, in-laws and dear friends from the US, Ireland, and around the world.

Coming from a humble upbringing on a Galway farm, Kevin learned his skills in the trades through working with his father John Hannon. A man known to be larger than life both physically and charismatically,

KEVIN J. HANNON

Kevin loved playing Rugby and Gaelic football where he excelled on the field. Kevin made an everlasting impression with his strong handshake, dimpled smile, quick wit and contagious laugh which attributed to his making friends all over the world. With a strong appreciation for labor and family values, Kevin came to the U.S. in 1988 with his wife Brenda where they continued to work hard and built lasting friendships. His legacy of hard work will continue to live on through the countless monuments that can be seen throughout the City of Quincy. Kevin was always happiest around his wife, four children, working alongside his peers in the City, and having the craic with everybody he knew. Kevin's passing will be felt immensely from Quincy to Ireland and beyond.

Relatives and friends are respectfully invited to greet the family during the visiting hours on Wednesday from 4-8 p.m. in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

A Celebration of Life Service will be held in the funeral home at 9:45 a.m. on Thursday prior to the Funeral Mass in Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy at 10:30 a.m.

Burial in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

In lieu of flowers, donations in memory of Kevin may be made to The Irish Pastoral Center, 15 Rita Road, Brookline, MA 02124 or Kate Phalon McCarthy Memorial Fund, c/o Coastal Heritage Bank, Patriot Parkway #1, So. Weymouth, MA 02190. See www.Keohane.com for directions, live streaming information and online condolences.

Massachusetts Pediatric COVID-19 Vaccination Plans Announced

Pfizer Pediatric COVID-19 Vaccine For Children Ages 5-11

Following updated guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the Baker-Polito Administration last week outlined how families can access Pfizer COVID-19 pediatric vaccines for children ages 5 to 11 in Massachusetts.

Children ages 5 to 11 will be able to receive the Pfizer Pediatric COVID-19 vaccine from more than 500 locations, ranging from retail pharmacies, primary care practices, regional collaboratives, local boards of health, community health centers, hospital systems, state-supported vaccination sites and mobile clinics. Some appointments are available now for booking, with additional locations and appointments expected to come online in the coming days.

How to find a Pediatric COVID-19 vaccine appointment:

1. Parents who prefer to have their child vaccinated by their primary care provider should call their provider's office directly.

2. Visit the VaxFinder tool at vaxfinder.mass.gov for a full list of hundreds of available locations. Residents will be able to narrow results to search for locations that are offering the Pfizer Pediatric COVID-19 vaccine, with some appointments available now for booking. Additional appointments will be available online in the coming days. Many locations will be booking appointments out weeks in advance.

3. For individuals who are unable to use VaxFinder, or have difficulty accessing the internet, the COVID-19 Vaccine Resource Line (Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday and Sunday 9 a.m. – 2 p.m.) is available by calling 2-1-1. The COVID-19 Vaccine Resource Line is available in English and Spanish and has translators available in approximately 100 additional languages.

All state supported vaccination clinics will offer low-sensory vaccinations for children with disabilities.

Additionally, the Administration has partnered with several non-traditional, youth friendly locations for pediatric vaccination clinics including the Discovery Museum in Acton, the Museum of Science in Boston, The Springfield Museums, and the EcoTarium in Worcester. Appointments for these clinics are available now on the VaxFinder tool.

Visit www.mass.gov/covidvaccinekids for more information.

Vaccines are widely available across the Commonwealth. Getting vaccinated remains the most important thing individuals can do to protect themselves, their families, and their community. The COVID-19 vaccine is safe, effective, and free. Individuals do not need an ID or health insurance to access a vaccine and do not need to show a vaccine card when getting a vaccine.

Massachusetts leads the nation in vaccine administration, including adolescent vaccination, with over 80% of youth ages 12-17 having received at least one dose. Over 4.7 million individuals are fully vaccinated, with more than 92% of all adults having at least one dose.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Some changes might seem confusing at first, especially to an Aries whose impatience levels are pretty shaky this week. Take it one step at a time, Lamb, and soon all will be made clear.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That difficult situation you've been dealing with continues to call for careful handling. Avoid quickly made choices that might not stand up when they're finally put to the test.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You still have lots of evaluating to do before you can consider making a commitment. It's better to move cautiously than to risk stumbling into a major misunderstanding.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A previously peevish partner offers to be more helpful with your problems. But remember: The final choice is yours. Be guided by what you feel is the right thing to do.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) As the Big Cat, you sometimes can be pretty rough on those you suspect of betrayal. The best advice is to pull in those claws and listen to the explanation. It might surprise you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your inner voice usually guides you well. But a note of caution: This is a period of mixed signals for you, so be careful that you don't misunderstand the messages you're getting.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Cupid's call beckons both single Librans looking for a new love, as well as couples hoping to strengthen their relationships. A workplace problem is quickly resolved.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) It's been a hectic time for you, and you might want to take a break to restore both body and soul. You'll then be set to face new challenges later this month.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's a good idea to take a more conservative approach to your financial situation right now. Some plans made earlier this year might need readjusting.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a fine time to move boldly into those new opportunities I promised would open up for you. Check them over, and then choose the best one for you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Congratulations. Your self-assurance is growing stronger, and you should now feel more confident about making that long-deferred decision about a possible commitment.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're very close to reaching your goal. But be wary of distractions that can lure you off-course and leave you stranded far away from where you really want to be.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have an inner sight that helps you see into people's hearts. You would be an excellent psychologist or social worker.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD – James Bond looks pretty good for a 58 year old. Bond first appeared on May 8, 1963 in the guise of Sean Connery in "To Russia With Love." Daniel Craig, 53, the sixth actor to embody Bond, has gotten people back into movie theaters and broken box-office records worldwide with his latest and last film, "No Time to Die." But Craig's fifth and final Bond film leaves him two short of the record holder, Roger Moore, who played 007 seven times between 1973 and 1985. He was preceded by Sean Connery, who gave him life five times from 1963-1983.

As much fun as Bond movies are, the 26 films (not counting the one-off 1967 comedy "Casino Royale," with four male and four female stars playing Bond) won only five Oscars, for visual effects, sound editing and the song "Skyfall," and none for acting. Collectively, the franchise has earned almost $7 billion globally. The single top-grosser was "Skyfall" (2012), which netted $1.1 billion. The search for the new Bond has begun.

Scarlett Johansson has settled her lawsuit with Disney. Disney had agreed to a 90-day theater run of her film "Black Widow," but started streaming it on Disney+ after 45 days for $30 a pop. Johansson sued for the 45-day percentage she lost from the streaming move. Disney had assumed her $20 million payday covered it, but rather than face a lengthy court trial with the entire movie industry waiting for a big payday precedent, they settled out of court and signed a non-disclosure settlement.

Also wanting her day in court is Lisa Renna (wife of Harry Hamlin), former star of "Days of Our Lives," "Melrose Place" and currently "The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills." A photo agency is suing Renna for $1.2 million for posting eight photos of herself with her two adult daughters on her own Instagram page. The agency is suing because, "Once a photograph is posted, People Magazine or US Weekly are less likely to buy it." Copyright laws generally protect writers or images produced through creative effort. It seems absurd that celebrities can't use photographs of themselves taken by others, especially those taken in public without their consent (Renna says, "My kids grew up with them jumping out of the bushes in Malibu"). Still want to be a celebrity?

DC Comics are taking Superman where he's never gone before. Jon Kent, the 17-year-old son of Clark Kent (Superman) and Lois Lane, is coming out as bisexual in the Nov. 9 release in "Superman: Son of Kal-El No. 5, in which he shares a romantic kiss with reporter Jay Nakamura. Proving once again..."A kiss is NOT just a kiss!"

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Pottery Vase — Artists often create works in many different mediums – ceramics, painting, sculpture, jewelry and even metalwork. After World War I, many artists traveled to different countries and schools to learn new "looks" and techniques. England, France, Germany and Scandinavia were leading art centers.

Vally Wieselthier (1895-1945) was famous in Germany by the 1920s but almost unknown in the United States. She was born in Austria and studied under Michael Powolny from 1914 to 1920, then continued working with the artists of the new Wiener Werkstatte. She was a leading ceramic artist and designer making figurines, female heads, vases and more.

In 1929, she moved to the U.S. and worked in New York making large ceramic statues and also designed dinnerware for the Sebring factory in Ohio; ironstone dinnerware designs for Mayer Pottery in Trenton, New Jersey; and worked at Cowan Pottery in Ohio, where she introduced the Wiener Werkstatte style. She also designed glassware, jewelry, textiles, papier-mache mannequins, furniture and even metal elevator doors. With all her success and fame, few pieces are seen in U.S. auctions. Neal Auction Company sold an 8-inch-high Wiener Werkstatte vase made in 1925 signed with both "WW" (Wiener Werkstatte) and "VW" (Vally Wieselthier) for $1,037.

Q. My aunt gave me a perfume lamp 50 years ago. It's a figural dog sitting up and begging. It has perforations on the head, a place for the perfume in the back of the head and large glass eyes where the light can show through. Can you tell me something about perfume lamps?

A: Maurice Berger, a French pharmacist, invented the perfume lamp in 1897 when he added perfume to lamp oil or other liquid fuel. Electric perfume lamps that used a lightbulb to heat the perfume were made by the early 1900s. The fragrance is emitted through small holes in the lamp.

Perfume lamps have been made in many different figural shapes and were made by manufacturers in several different countries. The lamp with a lightbulb, but without the perfume inside, is often used as a nightlight. Today a battery-operated or plug-in product, diffuser or spray can be used to provide a pleasant scent to a room.

Strange BUT TRUE

• McDonald's is the world's largest toy distributor.

• The ice cream bean is a fruit with a taste very similar to its namesake vanilla ice cream. The tree that the bean grows on is native to the Americas and can reach nearly 100 feet tall, with bean pods up to 6 feet long.

• Anyone who moves to the Villas Las Estrellas, a settlement in Antarctica, must first have their appendix preemptively removed, because the nearest hospital is over 625 miles away.

• The limbo world record is under 6 inches.

• In 1994, West Virginia prison inmate Robert Shepard braided dental floss into a rope as thick as a telephone cord, used it to scale an 18-foot wall, and escaped.

• King Richard II once had to pawn his crown because he was such a spendthrift.

• The first Olympic race took place in 776 B.C. and was won by a chef named Corubus. Moments after receiving his first paycheck, he hired a cook and an agent.

• Swedish athlete Ari Petrof is a National Sauna Champion. He once stayed in a 212 F sauna for five hours and 10 minutes.

• The band called Postal Service took its moniker from the fact that members originally used USPS to send each other music tracks, due to their conflicting schedules.

• Golf balls were made of wood until the 16th century.

• Spam mail got its nickname from the canned meat after a Monty Python skit that made fun of Spam as tasting "horrible and being ubiquitous and inescapable."

Thought for the Day: "Rest is not idleness, and to lie sometimes on the grass under trees on a summer's day, listening to the murmur of the water, or watching the clouds float across the sky, is by no means a waste of time." – John Lubbock

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

• You can cut the bitterness in some varieties of greens by soaking them in ice water for roughly an hour before serving. Use a salad spinner to get all of the water off.

• "Place an ice cube (or ice chips) in carpet divots left behind by furniture legs. This will help the fibers "plump up," and the spot will disappear!" – A.I. in Utah

• Remove the annoying sticky residue from price tags with WD-40 or baby oil. This is for use on hard surfaces only. If you are unsure, test in an inconspicuous spot first to make sure the oil doesn't leave a stain where the tag was.

• "To help repel the dust on baseboards between cleanings, wipe with a used dryer sheet. To make this even easier, you can put the dryer sheet over a Swiffer-type floor cleaner. This way, you don't even have to bend down." – M.E. in Alabama

• Felt circles are great for putting under small appliances on the kitchen counter. They are easier to move around, and they won't scratch the countertops. You can find them at the hardware store, or make your own by cutting out what you need from a piece of felt and attaching it to the bottom of your appliance with double-stick tape...or even a drop of glue!

• Running a washing machine that isn't full not only wastes energy and water, it also wastes money because you're paying to run more washes. Always fill the machine – but remember not to overload it! This applies to your dishwasher, too.

Q: When is the "Hocus Pocus" sequel coming out? Will it be in theaters, and are the original stars a part of it? – E.S.

A. The 1993 comedy about a trio of witches has become a cult classic. Bette Midler, Sarah Jessica Parker and Kathy Najimy starred in the Disney film, and its recent surge in popularity has inspired a sequel. All three stars will be reprising their roles, along with new characters played by Sam Richardson and Tony Hale (both from "Veep") and Hannah Waddingham ("Ted Lasso," "Game of Thrones"). Filming has started, with an anticipated release date in autumn 2022, perhaps just in time for Halloween. In the meantime, you can watch the original "Hocus Pocus" on Disney+.

Q: One of my favorite shows of all time was "Hart to Hart." Stefanie Powers and Robert Wagner were so good together. Were they married to each other in real life? – D.J.

A: "Hart to Hart" was a popular series about two wealthy globetrotting detectives named Jennifer and Jonathan Hart. It aired from 1979-84 and starred Stefanie Powers and Robert Wagner, but they were never a couple off-screen. Wagner was married to actress Natalie Wood and Powers was in an on-again, off-again relationship with actor William Holden.

Tragically, Wood and Holden both died unexpectedly in November 1981 (Wood drowned, and Holden tripped and hit his head). Wagner later wed his current wife, actress Jill St. John. In a fairly recent interview with Fox News, Powers said that she still keeps in touch with Wagner and that the two are like "siblings who really like each other."

Ovation TV recently signed a deal to air reruns of "Hart to Hart" on Wednesday nights beginning Nov. 17. For more information, visit Ovation-TV.com.

Q: Can you help me? There was a TV movie in the 1970s or 1980s about a women's football team. I think the lead star had blond hair and worked in a factory. I loved it as a kid, but only saw it that one time. – G.G.

A: It's most certainly "The Oklahoma City Dolls" (1981) starring Susan Blakely, who played a factory worker who moonlighted as a quarterback. It was a fictionalized script based on a real semi-pro female football team of the same name that was active for three years. SBNation.com called "The Oklahoma City Dolls" "the best sports film of all time" and showed Blakely the film 40 years after it originally aired before interviewing her. She said that she was a feminist and campaigned for equal rights for women back then. In the film, Blakely's character gets angry when she learns her male co-workers get time off to play on the company's football team, while the women pick up the slack. Their boss said the only way the women could get time off is if they played football, too. His challenge was accepted.

Unfortunately, you can't find the film on cable or any official streaming services, but there is a grainy bootleg copy available on YouTube.

Each puzzle consists of a square grid with numbers appearing in all squares. The object is to shade squares so:

1	5	3	1	2
5	4	1	3	4
3	4	3	1	5
4	4	2	3	3
2	1	5	4	4

1	(5)	3	■	(2)
(5)	■	(1)	3	4
3	4	■	1	(5)
4	■	(2)	■	(3)
(2)	(1)	(5)	4	■

- No number appears in a row or column more than once.
- Shaded (black) squares do not touch each other vertically or horizontally.
- When completed, all un-shaded (white) squares create a single continuous area.

Readers Sound Off on Letting Cats Outside

DEAR READERS: My recent letter from a pet mom who strongly believes cats should be allowed outside really touched a nerve among readers. They sent in some great responses, both for and against. Only a few are published here due to space constraints, but you can read all of them, unedited, at www.pawscorner.com. Here are just a few:

DEAR PAWS: I do not have a cat, but I would keep them indoors because of the dangers from and to them. And I do not let my dog run free either. – Mary Ann C.

DEAR PAWS: My current cat thrives on being outdoors, and she loves coming in and being a lap cat, too. I never let my cat stay outside all night, however; definitely more dangers then. – Carol T., Leicester, New York

DEAR PAWS: I think a person who lets any of their pets roam freely outside is uncaring, selfish and inconsiderate. A dictionary says this of a pet: "any domesticated or tame animal that is kept as a companion and cared for affectionately." – Signed, I love my pet

DEAR PAWS: Our pet cats still have an instinct to kill and be wild and free, just like big cats have. About the ticks: Just pull them off, put a little medicine on the bite, and that is that. – Adrian M.

DEAR PAWS: I agree with you. I lost two inside/outside cats when living in Florida. One got killed in the road; one got killed by a neighbor's dog. After that I kept cats inside. – Linda K.

DEAR PAWS: I just can't understand someone saying they "love having a cat," but they certainly don't seem to love the mess they leave in everyone else's yards! – Becky H.

What are your thoughts on the issue? Send them, or any pet care questions, to ask@pawscorner.com.

COUCH THEATER BY RACHEL ROSE

Adele One Night Only — Anticipation for this LA-filmed prime-time concert special is high, as it promises to be a major reveal of Adele's newest music, of which we have been deprived for six long years. (Her new album, "30," drops Nov. 19, and the first single from it, "Easy On Me," already hit No. 1 on Billboard.) Interspersed throughout the show will be an interview with Adele by none other than Ms. Oprah Winfrey. The women will talk all things music, lyric inspiration and life. But don't be confused by the name of this televised concert. While it airs only one night on CBS (Sunday, Nov. 14), the special will be available to stream starting the same night on Paramount+. (CBS/Paramount+)

City of Joel — What happens when an impassioned religious sect slowly and systematically attempts to become the dominating demographic in a quiet small town, in direct opposition to citizens outside of the religion? It gets really ugly, that's what. The town of Monroe, New York, includes the Village of Kiryas Joel, which is populated entirely by Hasidic Jews. Political battles over land brought tempers on both sides to the boiling point in 2018 when the village petitioned to annex a significant portion of town as its own, while simultaneously influencing local elections by voting as a unified block. This documentary skillfully presents both sides of the issue, creating a dramatic buildup that culminates with a game-changing city council election. (Prime Video)

Dear Rider: The Jake Burton Story — Remember that scene in "Hot Tub Time Machine" where, in 1986, nobody knew what the heck those guys were riding down the mountain? (Hint: It was snowboards.) Well, we have Jake Burton to thank for making that crazy new sport a permanent fixture on snowy mountains worldwide. After constructing the first snowboard in 1977, Burton spent the next 42 years devoted to promoting the sport, fine-tuning its equipment, and basically convincing the world how cool snowboarding really is. Even if you don't partake in the activity, this documentary is an interesting project that marries a great story of passion and entrepreneurship with fantastic winter sports footage. (HBOMax)

Theo Von: Regular People — Comedian Theo Von's second Netflix stand-up special is trending in the Top 10 its recent first week of release, so I had high hopes for an entertaining hour. I remembered him from his time on MTV's "Road Rules" and "The Challenge," but was unfamiliar with his comedy. Unfortunately, it was an agonizing 60 minutes. While there are moments I chuckled, for the most part I felt slightly uncomfortable, wondering if Von was trying too hard to be edgy or was simply naive to how insensitive some of his jokes were. He doesn't yet have the polish of a seasoned comedian, and many of his stories about growing up poor and the odd friends he knew then needed more details to provide enough setup for his jokes. He's not an unlikable guy, but the opening segment about his own haircut is probably the best part. (Netflix)

COPD Lung Function Can't Be Restored

DEAR DR. ROACH: I read your recent column on pulmonary fibrosis. I especially appreciate knowing that there are medications known to slow the progression of lung disease, reduce exacerbations and reduce mortality. With a 20-year-old diagnosis of COPD and having been prescribed medications to reduce exacerbations, you might imagine my interest in your article.

I'm wondering how pulmonary fibrosis differs from COPD and if the two medications that you mention (pirfenidone and nintedanib) might be helpful in slowing the progression of lung disease in patients such as myself. Have any studies been completed using these medications on patients with COPD? -- S.A.

ANSWER: Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease -- its two main forms are emphysema and chronic bronchitis -- usually, but not invariably, is a result of long-term exposure to lung toxins, especially smoke. In the most common case of COPD, due to cigarette smoking (at least, that's the most common in North America and Europe: cooking fires are still a common cause in less developed countries), stopping the exposure will dramatically slow down further damage. Unfortunately, there are no established treatments that can restore lung function in people with moderate to advanced COPD.

Pulmonary fibrosis is, by contrast, a rare disease; about 30,000 people in the U.S. are diagnosed each year (compare that with the 9 million people in the U.S. diagnosed with chronic bronchitis last year).

The exact mechanism of action of pirfenidone and nintedanib is not known, but they are not thought to be effective in COPD. Surprisingly, I did not find a published trial looking at whether these drugs might be effective. The need for new therapies to treat COPD is so great that I would have thought some researcher might have tried it, despite the long odds..

DEAR DR. ROACH: At 75, I had my first-ever kidney stone in December. The urologist told me to stop drinking so much milk. But he never asked if my diet had changed. I had been eating almonds by the handful every day. I felt certain this was the cause of the stone.

I drink skim milk, which is practically tasteless. I started adding a slight bit of almond milk to the skim to give it a more pleasant taste. Should I not be doing this? -- P.T.

ANSWER: I am not certain why the urologist told you to stop drinking cow's milk. We used to believe that the calcium in milk increased risk for kidney stones, especially calcium oxalate stones, which are the most common type; however, dietary calcium paradoxically decreases risk of kidney stones, whereas calcium supplements increase risk of stones. What makes the biggest difference in diet is the oxalate content.

Almonds, as well as almond milk, are very high in oxalate; cow's milk is not. I don't know what you mean by a "slight bit" of almond milk, but I would try to avoid taking too much (more than a few teaspoons a day), and find another way to flavor the milk if you really don't like it. I know a few people who add a drop of vanilla. Coconut milk -- which I don't recommend consuming in large quantities due to the saturated fat content -- does not have oxalate.

Essentially, everybody with kidney stones should drink plenty of water, and nearly everyone should be very careful not to have too much sodium.

Cranberry Graham Squares

While cranberry sauce is always appropriate, why not share this cranberry-studded recipe this season? After all, it won't be long before these ruby delights won't be anywhere to be found.

- 12 (2 1/2-inch) graham crackers
- 1 (4-serving) package sugar-free vanilla instant pudding mix
- 2/3 cup nonfat dry milk powder
- 1¾ cups water
- 1 (4-serving) package sugar-free vanilla cook-and-serve pudding mix
- 1 cup reduced-calorie cranberry juice cocktail
- 1 cup fresh or frozen cranberries
- 1 cup reduced-calorie whipped topping

1. Evenly arrange 9 graham crackers in a 9-by-9-inch cake pan. In a large bowl, combine dry instant pudding mix, dry milk powder and 1 1/4 cups water. Mix well using a wire whisk. Pour mixture evenly over graham crackers. Refrigerate while preparing cranberry sauce.

2. In a medium saucepan, combine dry cook-and-serve pudding mix, cranberry juice cocktail, remaining 1/2 cup water and cranberries. Cook over medium heat for about 5 minutes or until cranberries soften, stirring often.

3. Remove from heat, place saucepan on a wire rack and allow to cool for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Evenly spoon cooled mixture over set filling.

4. Spread whipped topping evenly over cranberry mixture. Crush remaining 3 graham crackers into fine crumbs. Evenly sprinkle crumbs over top. Refrigerate for at least 1 hour. Serves 8.

• Each serving equals: 93 calories, 1g fat, 2g protein, 19g carbs., 297mg sodium, 1g fiber; Diabetic Exchanges: 1 starch.

1. Who released "Peg"?
2. Where did Thin Lizzy get their name?
3. Why did Simon and Garfunkel end up in a lawsuit over their release of "El Condor Pasa"?
4. Which artist wrote and released "Lovers Who Wander"?
5. Name the song that contains this lyric: "I'm a rambler and a rover, and I wander it seems, I've traveled all over, chasing after my dreams."

Answers

1. Steely Dan, in 1977 on their "Aja" album. During recording, they went through seven guitarists before finding one (Jay Graydon) who nailed the solo.
2. From a character in The Dandy, a British comic. For a while after they got started, they were mistakenly called Tin Lizzy due to a Dublin accent that would leave out the "th" sound.
3. Paul Simon heard the song played by Los Incas and was told it was a traditional Peruvian song from the 18th century. Assuming it was therefore not subject to royalties, S&G recorded it and included English lyrics. A lawsuit was filed by the son of the man who'd written (and copyrighted) the song in 1933.
4. Dion, in 1962. It reached No. 3 on the Hot 100 chart.
5. "The Piney Wood Hills," by Buffy Sainte-Marie, released on her "Many a Mile" album in 1965.

Contract Bridge

RIGHT BID, WRONG DECLARER

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♦	4♣	6♦

Opening lead — king of clubs.

The basic purpose of a preemptive bid is to crowd the bidding so that the opponents — who are presumed to have the better hands — will have very limited space in which to exchange information. Quite often this tactic succeeds in jockeying the opponents into the wrong contract.

West's four-club bid in today's deal is a typical pre-emptive bid. With seven winners in his hand with clubs as trump, West cannot lose more than 500 points even if he is doubled and goes down three.

Furthermore, if it should turn out that his partner does not provide him with a single trick, the 500-point loss becomes very worthwhile, since the vulnerable opponents are then almost sure to have game, if not a slam. From every viewpoint, therefore, the jump-overcall by West is a sound tactical measure.

Consider North's predicament after the four-club bid. It's not clear what he should do. His actual raise to six diamonds — though a shot in the dark — is probably as reasonable an action as any.

The way things turned out, though, North should have bid only five diamonds. West led the king of clubs, covered by the ace and ruffed by East. Declarer later lost a heart trick and so went down one.

However, the outcome does not prove that North was wrong to bid the slam. In fact, had his partner played the hand more carefully, he would have made six diamonds. He should have anticipated the possibility that East had no clubs and protected against it by playing low from dummy at trick one, allowing West's king to win the trick!

If West continued with a second club, South would again play low from dummy and ruff in his hand. With the ace of clubs still in dummy and available for a heart discard, it would then have been a simple matter for declarer to score the 12 tricks he had started with.

DECEMBER COPLEY SQUARE oil painting by Quincy artist Deb Putnam

Artist Showcase: Deb Putnam

As a plein air artist living in South Boston, I find a limitless source for my paintings.

Sunny days you will find me painting on neighborhood street corners or in downtown Boston. When painting outdoors is not possible, I work in my South Boston studio on larger scale paintings, portraits and other figurative works.

What interests me most about plein air city painting is how sunlight breaks up form when it falls on an object. I see the city as an urban canyon where shadows caused by the surrounding buildings create an unexpected pattern of dark and light. There is something extraordinary about working outdoors in the city, hunting a site, being immersed in the noise and action as well as interacting with the community.

With my choice of subject matter such as old buildings and nightscapes I hope to pay homage to a disappearing landscape. It is a common occurrence for my chosen subject matter to be a victim of urban renewal after paint them.

In my portrait and figurative I hope to celebrate both an intimate and universal moment in time for the viewer. The shared experience of family and mealtime makes a frequent appearance in these works.

District Governor Billy Roberts Visits Quincy Rotary Club

The Quincy Rotary welcomed Rotary District Governor Dr. William "Billy" Roberts to their weekly Rotary Luncheon at the Common Market Oct. 26.

Gov. Billy serves a one-year term and was elected on July 1, 2021 to serve Rotary District 7950 comprised of 66 Rotary Clubs in Eastern Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Cape Cod and The Islands. Luckily, his visit was early in the week and he could arrive and depart in advance of the Nor'easter from his Osterville home base to be with Quincy Rotarians at lunch.

Typically, the District Governor visits each of his District's Rotary Clubs at least once per year for a business meeting and stays for lunch. He needs the sustenance, as his schedule stretches out from September until mid-December to accommodate each of the district's 66 Clubs. The local session starts with a business meeting reviewing financial reports, Club goals, District and Rotary International policies and various Community Service Projects conducted and/or planned for the year.

A few of the Quincy events/project highlights included a recent Rotary Tailgating Party with the neighboring Braintree Rotary. A huge success - not only filled with fellowship and fun, but also a fundraising portion yielding over $1,500 for the Rotary International Polio Plus campaign. Rotary International's Polio Plus campaign was initiated in mid-1980s, and many are probably not aware that Rotary now partners with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation and of the great strides in eradicating polio in all but 3 countries of the world.

Board Members were proud to talk about several Rotary projects that have citywide impacts: In May, Rotary distributed Josh the Otter water safety books, one for every kindergarten and 1st grader in Quincy Public Schools, 1,200-plus-books, making up for missing the 2020 distribution due to COVID-19; and, in early September, Rotarians filled over 50 backpacks with club-donated toiletries, gift cards, and masks for displaced high school students. Coming in November, a Literacy Project Team-Reading event and book distribution (700 copies) is in the planning stages with Quincy College Early Childhood Students for each of the QPS first grade classes.

The Rotary's international impact is felt with a grant awarded for 2021 to Quincy Rotary for the Friends of Thai Daughters Project. The project creates a thrivable farm in Chiang Rai, Thailand, which will be home to Thai Daughters. The Farm is designed to provide a sustainable support, education, housing model for girls at risk for human trafficking and help them achieve a brighter future. It's a milestone for the Quincy Rotary Club – the first Rotary International Grant won and one of the highest monetary value International grants awarded worldwide.

The Quincy Rotarians also informed the Governor of a unique member-sponsored event. A reception, hosted by the Keohane family on Oct. 20 at Alba raised over $1,200. The book-signing proceeds were donated to the Quincy Rotary Scholarship Foundation from the sale of Joe Keohane's new book, The Power of Strangers.

Finally, many of Rotary's charitable giving opportunities were also mentioned during the meeting/lunch. Examples cited were donations to the Germantown Food Pantry and the Pan-Mass Challenge, and Rotary's involvement with the Salvation Army Bell-Ringing and Toy Drive. These and many others, along with the scholarships awarded each year in Quincy's high schools totaling over $40,000, impressed the governor with how active the Quincy Rotary Club is and of the many examples of service in which Rotarians are involved. He closed by commenting on how the Club and its members can and are really making a difference in Quincy and beyond.
